Welfare of Animals In War Emergency Is Humane Society Aim

Owners have an added responsibility of caring properly for their animals during the war emergency, the Southern Oregon Humane society declared today as it awaited information and instructions from the American Red Star Animal Relief association which has been compiling data from the experience of humane societies in Great Britain.

The experience of Great Britain in war time "will be of decided advantage to our affiliated societies which are now faced with the possibilities of like responsibilities on the Pacific coast," the Red Star organization wrote to the humane society here.

Pending receipt of this information, the humane society asked owners not to let their animals run at large during a blackout.

Nazis Moving Troops Out of Norway While Unrest There Grows

Washington, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Crown Prince Olav of Norway said today that, because of military reverses in Russia and Libya, Germany was pulling troops out of occupied Norway and underground unrest among loyal Norwegians was growing day by day.

The crown prince has just arrived here from London where he has been with the Norwegian government in exile. He told a press conference that with the entrance of all great world powers into the war, axis members were going to find that the way of the aggressor "doesn't pay."

"I feel more convinced than ever that the war will end fairly soon," he said. "For the first time we Norwegians can see the end—that the free peoples of the earth are going to prove that aggression doesn't pay. Now that all great powers are in the war it will conclude more quickly."

MEDFORD FIREMEN INVITED TO WRITE STORY FOR BRITISH

Howard B. Glascock, city fireman, today had a letter and a magazine from Frank Lamsley of Harrow, London, England, who invited the fire department here to contribute an article to "Turn Out," official journal of the London fire services.

The correspondence passed the censor and was contained in a large envelope. A stamp with Hitler's likeness was affixed to the envelope, the stamp containing the notation: "Let's Lick Hitler." Over the stamp Lamsley had written "Rat No. 1."

Lamsley said he was a fireman in the London service and a sub-editor of "Turn Out," a copy of which he enclosed. The magazine is planning to publish an overseas section and it was for this that Lamsley asked for a contribution from Medford.

Besides having the common interests of firemen, Lamsley and Glascock are also amateur radio operators. It was, in fact, in a list of "hams" that Lamsley found Glascock's name. On a blind chance, he wrote to Glascock.
