BRITAIN'S LEADER TAUNTS DICTATORS IN OTTAWA SPEECH

L. MacKenzie King, introducing Churchill, called him "the personification of Britain's greatness." Churchill's entrance into the chamber was greeted with wild applause, and the applause was even louder when the prime minister arose to speak. Churchill said Britains were "most grateful for all you have done in the common cause and now you are resolved" to do even more in the fight for freedom.

"Canada is a potent magnet, drawing together those in the new world and those in the old," he said. "Canada's contribution to the British war effort has been 'magnificent,' he asserted. In Key Position The Canadian army in Britain, he continued, is in a "key position" to strike at any invaders of Britain.

"Their presence may help to deter such a battle on British soil," he went on. The prime minister said he thought it "unlikely" that the war would end without the Canadians coming to close quarters with the Germans "as their fathers did on the Somme and at Vimy Ridge."

He referred to Hongkong and the British work in making it a powerful port which has been "wrested from us for a time" by the overwhelming power of the home forces of Japan. "We are not asking that the rules of the game be modified," he said. "If anybody wants to play rough, we can play rough, too."

When he remarked that he had spent the week with President Roosevelt, there was new applause. "That great man," he began, only to be interrupted by new cheers. Roosevelt, he said, was a man "of destiny" reserved for this climax in world affairs.

"There will be no compromise or parley. These gangs of bandits who have sought to darken the world and to stand between the peoples of the world... shall be pitched into the pit," he said after speaking of the "Japanese frenzy, the Nazi tyranny and the Italian flop."
