WHO HAS THE ANSWERS?

To the editor: This writer seems to be chuck full of questions these days, but don't know who has the answers. So he would like to release a few of those questions, in the hope that they will find their answers.

First. What has become of our 300 mile "safety zone" around the western hemisphere? Did this country derive any benefit whatever from that tall bluff? Doubtless all interested nations knew that we were not then prepared for any war, not to mention a World war.

Second. Is the Southern Pacific the sole judge of the services it shall render to the sections through which its lines pass? Doesn't the Public Utilities commission have some authority over that matter?

Even if there should be a valid reason for discontinuing the fast train, why should the slow train stand idle at Ashland some nine hours every day? Couldn't it easily close that ugly gap by continuing on to Weed or Dunsmuir, and returning to Ashland in time for its evening run north?

Third. Since tin is recognized as a vital war material and our main source of tin supply is in grave danger of being lost to the enemy, why not be saving and using what we have? Millions of tons of tin are now hauled away to the dump; an absolute waste.

Instead of banning the use of tin at the canneries, why not let tin do double duty? It would be a very simple matter for every one to empty, rinse and sack those cans and have them ready for the collector monthly, weekly or daily, according to the locality and number used. That collector would take them to some central point where they could be crushed and baled as was the old aluminum.

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you may like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

Sonny Capone Takes Bride

inum, or better still, could be melted down and shipped as ingots to the places where needed. Surely they would know how to separate the dross and alloy from the tin.

If we are now entering a long and unthinkably expensive war, it is going to be vitally important that we form the habit and practice of conserving all of our resources. This almost inconceivable waste of tin now reminds one of those days, just a few decades back when coal tar was treated as purely a troublesome waste. "Gather up the fragments, that nothing be lost," American cannot afford to be a wastrel now.

COUNTY COUNCIL ON NUTRITION TO MEET WEDNESDAY

Women's Organizations and Granges of County Invited To Send Representatives

Representatives from all rural and city women's organizations, including granges, are scheduled to meet with the Jackson county council on nutrition for defense Wednesday, January 7, it was stated by Miss Marian Farrell, county home demonstration agent, who is chairman of the council.

The meeting will be held at the Lincoln school gymnasium in Medford, opening at 2 p. m.

Purpose of the nutrition council is to better acquaint the public with the extreme importance of proper nutrition and how it may be acquired, Miss Farrell said, and complete plans for spreading this information throughout the county will be formulated at the meeting.

Cooperation Urged

Miss Farrell urged all organizations to cooperate and send a representative to the meeting, regardless of whether official notification had been received. She urged this attendance so that everyone might become acquainted with the work that is being carried on.

The nutrition council will offer a series of four training meetings during the next few months at which local leaders from all sections of the county will receive information on selection and preparation of food, which in turn will repeat to their own organizations and community groups. These leaders will be chosen at the meeting Wednesday, at which time Mrs. Una B. Inch, county school supervisor, and chairman of the school lunch committee, will discuss the problems and cost of the school lunch. Exhibits of this phase will be shown, as well as exhibits on ways in which every person in a community can aid the nutrition plans.

Mrs. Keeney to Explain
Mrs. Rosemary Keeney, farm security home supervisor, will explain the work of her committee in lining up volunteer speakers who will give talks on nutrition at Granges, P.T.A. assemblies, Kiwanis groups, and others. Mrs. Virginia Waite, home economics teacher in the Medford Junior high school, will have charge of exhibits, and a demonstration on making vegetable salads will be given by the Table Rock 4-H club demonstration team comprised of Lucille Smith and Marjory Hunsley.

Mrs. A. A. Dixon, chairman of the county extension committee, will explain the four leader training meetings to be held on "food to keep you fit." The first of these meetings is scheduled for January 28th, when Miss Lucy Case, extension specialist in nutrition from Corvallis, will have charge of the training.
