

FIX SPARE ROOMS FOR WORKMEN IS VAN DYKE'S PLEA

Housing Shortage Visioned
By Coordinator When Cantonment Work Starts.

Frank J. Van Dyke, coordinator of the cantonment civilian coordinating board, said today that federal agencies encourage the immediate addition of a room or two and the conversion of spare rooms to the use of cantonment workers.

This way of helping to solve the expected housing problem is favored by the government over new construction so as to avert a surplus of dwellings after the housing need has passed, Mr. Van Dyke said.

The coordinator stated that it is now evident there will be an acute housing shortage during the period of cantonment construction. There is an expectation that about 3,500 workers will come here in the first ten-day construction period and that the number of workers will reach a peak of 9,000, he said. It was reasonable to anticipate that the first rush of workers will arrive early in February, he added. Workers already are filtering in, he said inquiries about housing indicated.

Demand Seen Now
There is a noticeable demand for housing now, Mr. Van Dyke said in urging everyone with houses, apartments or rooms to rent to list them immediately with the housing registration office, in the tourist bureau at North Riverside avenue and Fifth street. A telephone, 4012, has been installed and a girl employed solely to keep tabs on places for rent, he added.

It is important, Mr. Van Dyke emphasized, that landlords and apartment house managers notify the registration office immediately upon renting a place so that inquiries will not be sent out to places already rented. He asked full cooperation in keeping the records up to date so that his office might be of greatest service to both the landlords and the applicants for housing.

LOAN ASSOCIATION PLEDGES ALL AID TO BRING VICTORY

At its annual meeting yesterday afternoon the First Federal Savings & Loan association pledged itself to do its part in whatever capacity called upon to attain victory.

The present war situation, R. F. Kyle, secretary-manager said in his annual report, "means that every savings and loan association, along with every other business, must think first of its obligation to the victory program. As events unfold we shall be shown many ways in which we can serve the country which are not now apparent. With the assurance of the full support of all members, we pledge that the association will do its part in whatever capacity that may be."

Mr. Kyle's report said that one of the useful contributions the association was now making was promoting and selling defense savings bonds. This program, he said, is absorbing a large part of the association's effort and has taken preference over the procurement of savings accounts.

"The contribution which every citizen can make in this war is to save rather than to spend," Mr. Kyle's report said. "In the larger sense, the postponement of spending, whether by the way of savings bonds or other savings channels, is a move toward victory."

Mr. Kyle said in his report that the association in 1941 had a "prosperous year of service to this community." The past year, he added, saw a growing popularity of real estate, "our basic security as an investment." He foresaw a greater demand for "our financing service" than ever before.

Max Peirce, W. H. Reichstein and B. H. Bauer were re-elected directors for a three-year term. William M. McAllister was chosen attorney. Other officers were re-elected. They are William H. Fluhrer, president, A. J. Hanby, vice president, Mr. Kyle, secretary-treasurer, and Mary Jane Headlee, assistant secretary-treasurer.
