WOMEN ENROLLED IN MANY FIELDS FOR CIVIL DEFENSE

Myriad Jobs Keep Voluntary Workers Busy From Daylight To Nightfall.

By Corinne Hardesty
UP Staff Correspondent

New York (UP)—A day in the life of a woman volunteer defense worker is more crowded than a debutante's social schedule and more hectic than a housewife's blue Monday.

Volunteer defense work, covering anything Americans may do on the home front in total war, went into high gear with the attack on Pearl Harbor. Most active organizations so far are the American Red Cross, American Women's Voluntary Services and the Office of Civilian Defense. The women work from daylight to dark or later.

At the office of the motor division of the AWVS, smartly uniformed Bernice Reedy was on duty at 7 a. m. to answer telephone calls for emergency motor service.

In spite of the confusion of 50 or 60 women "who want to do something" milling about, Miss Reedy dispatched a car to take a small child to a throat clinic.

In 28 States

The motor corps is only one division of the AWVS, which is organized in 28 states and has 150,000 workers. In the last two weeks more than 1,000 eager women have registered at its local office.

Motor corps volunteers must have a driver's license. They take courses in first aid, convoy driving, map reading and mechanics and must give 50 hours service before they can wear the corps uniform—a tidy, two-piece outfit in gray blue gabardine with lots of brass buttons.

Air raid and fire wardens, many of whom registered with precinct police and fire chiefs months ago as a lark, found themselves in class rooms, manual and notebook in hand.

She proceeded to outline wardens' duties: enforcing lighting restrictions; helping steer persons to safe places; assisting victims; reporting fires, and organizing neighborhood groups.

Most members of the warden classes proceeded immediately to first aid classes. These are organized by the Red Cross with some duty to fit every woman's talent.

At the Office of Civilian Defense a group of 40 interviewers who volunteered to help volun-

Auto Tax Stamps Available Late at P. O. On Saturday

To accommodate the public a window at the postoffice will be kept open tomorrow to 6 p. m. for the sale of motor vehicle tax stamps. Postmaster Frank DeSouza announced today. No other business, however, will be transacted tomorrow afternoon, he emphasized.

The federal motor vehicle tax law becomes effective Monday and from then on motor vehicles must have the required stamp attached to some part of the car, such as the dash board, where it can be seen readily. Postmaster DeSouza has recommended writing one's name and address or license number across the face of the stamp to avert theft. The stamp costs $2.09 for the remainder of the current fiscal year.

Edward C. Kelly to Quit Federal Post For Practice Here

Edward C. Kelly, former Medford resident who has been away about eight years, is expected to return tomorrow to make his home here again. He is relinquishing his position as attorney for the Bonneville power administration in Portland to enter private practice here.

Mrs. Kelly and the three children, Bernard, Noreen and Jimmy, arrived last week and took up residence at 1013 South Oakdale avenue. Mrs. Kelly preceded her husband here so that the children might be enrolled at St. Mary's academy for the current term which opened last Monday.

Since leaving Medford Mr. and Mrs. Kelly have resided in Washington, D. C., Nome, Alaska, and Portland, Mr. Kelly doing legal work for the government in each place. Mr. Kelly is the son of Mrs. E. E. Kelly of 911 Queen Ann avenue and the late Co. Kelly. Mrs. Kelly's mother, Mrs. Paul Greiner, is expected to come here soon to live.

He will succeed William Ritchie Dowrey of Vancouver, B. C., who resigned to become price administrator of British Columbia. The term expires July 1.

PORTLAND TEACHERS TO GET WAGE BOOST

Portland, Jan. 30.—(P)—A blanket 5 per cent pay increase for 2000 teachers and other Portland school employees was approved by the board of education Wednesday night.

The action confirmed an authorization given by the board last fall. It was necessary now for the new budget.

CALIFORNIA DROPS S.P. TRAIN HEARING

San Francisco, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Cancellation of a joint hearing to consider the Southern Pacific railroad's request to abandon passenger train service between Southern Oregon towns and Dunsmuir, Calif., was announced last night by the state railroad commission.

The California and Oregon commissions had scheduled the hearing for Yreka on February 9, but cancelled it to comply with the army's request that there be no public hearings on rail service curtailment which might reveal military information.

JEAN: I can't. But any time's the right time for good coffee. Here, try this.
