Robert Stedman Lauded In Campus Drama Role

By Dorothy Pruitt

No light piece of entertainment is John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men." It is a stark, tragic social drama wherein the emotions of rugged characters are laid wide open. It has to do mainly with two poverty-bitten migrant laborers in the Salinas valley, George and Lennie.

Recent production of this play at the University of Oregon theatre was outstanding for several reasons, one being the performance of our own local Robert Stedman. Cast as the big hulking, pathetic Lennie, Mr. Stedman presented a characterization that will live in the memory.

To save a character such as Lennie from falling into the maudlin and melodramatic requires the spark of sincere acting. Mr. Stedman's work contained this spark. The part of Lennie, in his hands simply came to life. All the plodding, trusting ways of the big fellow with the strength of an ox and a child-like mind were held constantly in character and marked the important contrast to his loyal friend, the sharp, skeptic George. Not once did the pitch or tempo of another actor's lines seep into his work.

All the touching qualities of Lennie were there, and the terrible. His wishful desire to follow George's instructions and "keep out of trouble," his persistent longing to "have a little piece of land and to tend the rabbits," his love for mice and puppies and "the feel of soft things," and his dumb wonder at the inevitable death these creatures met in his brute-like paws; the constant pull within him between right and wrong and his never quite understanding what it was all about—not one of these qualities was neglected by Mr. Stedman, not one by-passed.

Especially gripping was the final scene in which Lennie, fleeing from the law, returns to the lonely river bank to wait for George to come.

Vegetable Cookery Instructions Given Community Leaders Local leaders throughout the county met in the court house auditorium Friday, where they were instructed in vegetable cookery as a result of a community cooking program carried on through cooperation of the surplus marketing administration and the extension service. Leaders will conduct cookery meetings in their own communities throughout February and March.

Community leaders in the work include Mrs. Mildred Ager, Mrs. Gladys Dooms, Ashland; Mrs. Lee Port, Applegate; Mrs. N. B. Schuler, Mrs. Cloyd Dick, Rogue River; Mrs. O. C. Hamilton, Mrs. Jennie Russell, Sams Valley; Mrs. G. E. Ousterhout, Eagle Point; Mrs. Jess Thomas, Mrs. W. L. Wilson, Oak Grove; Mrs. A. S. Beck, Jacksonville; Mrs. Arnold Bohner, Mrs. L. B. Clovenberg, Medford; Mrs. A. E. Stevens, Chamberlain; Mrs. R. D. Chamberlain, Trail-Shady Cove.

Issuance of certificates of identification to aliens of enemy nationalities will be started here tomorrow at 8:30 a. m. in the courtroom on the second floor of the federal building. Applications for the certificates must be made some day this week, final day being Saturday, February 7. All natives, citizens, denizens or subjects of any foreign nation or government with which the United States has declared war, who are 14 years of age or older and who have not fully acquired American citizenship are required by law to apply for a certificate of identification this week.

When applying for the certificate the enemy alien should bring with him to the postoffice: (1) alien registration receipt card issued to him in the nation-wide registration of aliens in 1940; (2) three mounted photographs of himself, 2 by 2 inches in size, taken within the past month.

The photograph is the only expense to be borne by the alien. If the procedure is not clear, enemy aliens may obtain complete instructions and information at the postoffice. Mrs. Eva W. Judd will be in charge of the registration.
