Maybe Confucius said:

"My Wants Are Few—I Care ONLY for the BEST"

PERHAPS YOU wouldn't recognize a fugue if you met one in an alley. Perhaps you don't know a sonata from a sofa. Yet you needn't know how a rose creates its perfume to enjoy it. And you don't have to dissect music to enjoy the best. Fritz Kreisler says you recognize it by your goose-flesh.

Great music does stir everyone—rich man, poor man... highbrow, lowbrow—particularly when it combines the genius of a master composer, a fine orchestra, and a top-flight conductor like Pierre Monteux. Wherefore the Standard Symphony Hour has become a home institution.

Our fan mail tells us that every Thursday evening at 8 o'clock Mutual stations are dialed by listeners in overalls... in silken gowns... and even in diapers. Anyhow, a mother recently thanked us because her 15-year old son had known great music "from birth." Of course, the Symphony Hour isn't yet 15—but it's past 14.

Some people, we know, prefer le jazz hot or le crack wise. But, honestly, what other program has the recommendation of thousands who have made it part of their lives—since Coolidge was president? We hope that you are sharing their pleasure. For it's our way of saying "Thank You" for patronage—often of longer standing, even, than the Standard Symphony Hour.

Mariners Class Holds "Madcap Cruise" at Church

The Mariners class met Wednesday evening at the First Christian church for its monthly party, a "madcap cruise." The gangplank was lifted at 7:30 with 40 passengers on board. Invitations were in the form of passports.

The recreational hall of the church was decorated to represent a ship, complete with sails, and also flying the Christian and American flags. Wayne Wakefield commanded the ship as captain, and under his orders, many games were enjoyed.

A mock wedding was presented, the characters wearing cast-off clothes, onion bouquets and boutonnières, plus the "traditional gun." Preceding the entrance of the bride party, Earnest Savage sang, and also played the wedding march. The following participated: preacher, Virginia Cook; bride, Georgia Burnham; groom, Fredene Doty; bride's maid, Bertha Strode; best man, Maxine McQuigg; bride's mother, Evelyn Savage; bride's father, Dorothy Doty. The ceremony culminated in the presentation of a gift to Seamen, Dorothy and Roy Cameron, who were married in December. Pictures were taken of the bridal party.

Skipper Mable Smith presided at a short business session. A comedy play is to be presented for the public in the near future, with Earnest Savage as teacher. Mrs. R. W. Coleman, teacher of the class, expressed the hope that the growth of fellowship and spiritual strength would continue among the young married couples already in the class, and those who will be reached.

The wheel crew, with Seamen Isalee and Wayne Wakefield, mates, assisted by Seamen Mable and Clarence Smith were hosts for the evening. Present also were Seamen Bill and Bertha Strode; Earl and Maxine McGulig, Herbert and Georgia Burnham, Price and Agnes Shafer, Roy and Dorothy Cameron, Earnest and Evelyn Savage, Shirrell and Fredene Doty, Tyale and Elene Ford, Rufus and Virginia Younger, Marvin and Reanne Heideman, Lloyd and Vesta Langston, Bruce and Joy Ruff, Claude and Doris Hoover, Herbert and Helen Hammond, Ralph and Virginia Cook, Irwin and Dorothy Doty, Yvonne Haggard, Ione Kindred.

ARMY CONSIDERS PAID OBSERVERS FOR FAR SECTORS

Salem, Feb. 2.—(P)—The army is giving consideration to hiring paid aircraft observers in remote areas, State Defense Coordinator Jerrold Owen said today on returning from a meeting of western defense officials in San Francisco.

Owen said that Major General Jacob E. Fickel, commanding the fourth air force, announced that the remote observation posts would continue to be manned by volunteer observers until there is less danger from air raids.

Fickel said that arrangements soon would be completed for the army to hire paid observers in forest lookout posts at strategic spots west of the Cascades. He added that the army is seriously concerned with the danger of sabotage in Oregon and Washington forests during the coming fire season.

The army rejected Owen's request that Oregon be permitted to operate an amateur defense radio network, all amateurs now being off the air by federal order.
