

Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn In Brilliant Comedy Romance

FAY BANTER AND GLADYS BLAKE IN SUPPORTING PARTS

Newest Hepburn Film On Craterian Bill for Three-Day Run.

Appearing in roles especially written for them, Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn co-star in "Woman of the Year," which opens today at the Craterian theatre.

This is their first co-starring picture, and Miss Hepburn's initial film since "The Philadelphia Story." Tracy appears as a hard-boiled New York sports writer and Miss Hepburn is a sophisticated international columnist on the staff of the same daily.

The romance is played against humorous backgrounds. Until she meets Tracy in the picture, Miss Hepburn has never seen a baseball game or a football match. In his turn, Tracy has never traveled with the sparkling international set until he meets the columnist. But they have one thing in common—love—and are married.

When she is chosen as the most important woman of the year, Miss Hepburn concentrates on her career at the expense of home and husband. It requires some hard knocks and the Tracy technique to establish an ideally happy marriage.

Fay Bainter, Reginald Owen, Minor Watson, William Bendix, Gladys Blake, Dan Tobin, Roscoe Karns and William Tamen complete the cast.
