

MIDWAY VICTORY DUE TO PLANES BASED ON LAND

Military Observers Believe
Japanese Defeat Erases
Danger of Future Attempt

By John M. Hightower
Washington, June 12.—(AP)—The greatest naval triumph which the United States has scored in this war apparently was won in the first instance by land-based air forces.

This was the conclusion reached by military observers here after a study of fresh reports from Hawaii on last week's battle off Midway Island, which led to the worst defeat in Japanese history.

The conclusion was tentative since the navy's part in the great battle remains to be told. But unless the reports from the headquarters of Lieut. General Delos C. Emmons, army commander in Hawaii, are extremely incomplete it was aerial strike power reaching far out from Midway and paced by B-17 "flying fortresses" that initially repulsed and scattered the enemy forces.

All Services Busy
Cooperating in the whole enterprise were not only the army planes but also marine fighters and dive bombers, and navy dive bombers and torpedo planes.

In informed quarters here it is considered possible that the American victory was so complete as almost to eliminate the possibility that the enemy again would venture into any area of the Pacific where he may be opposed by land-based American aircraft in force.

Four Phases
The battle at Midway went through at least four phases, according to an analysis of eyewitness accounts reported by Clark Lee, Associated Press correspondent with General Emmons.

The first was on June 3 when army heavy bombers contacted a Japanese force of 20 to 26 warships and transports approaching Midway from the west. This appears to have been an occupying armada designed to take the island after defenses had been crushed.

The main attack was to have been delivered by an all-warship assault group of more than 20 ships steaming in from another direction.

The army fliers pattern-bombed the occupying force, hitting one cruiser and a transport and possibly hitting another cruiser and battleship.

Carrier Blasted
On the morning of June 4, while enroute to renew the fight against the occupying force, the bombers were ordered to change course and seek out the battle force. In this second phase, the B-17s blasted at least one plane carrier.

Marine and navy dive bombers and navy torpedo planes also attacked.

Meanwhile, on Midway itself, marine fighter planes had gone up for the third phase of the battle. At least 180 Japanese planes attacked there with high-altitude and dive bombing and strafing. Apparently in the expectation of using the airport themselves later on, the enemy airmen did not bomb it. Soon after the Japs withdrew American planes returned from their morning attack to refuel and reload their bomb racks.

The enemy had his big chance to catch the American units in a relatively helpless position. But the island's best defense had been the attack launched on the enemy's carriers and the Japanese planes did not come back.

Pierce and Angell Against WPA Shrink

Washington, June 12.—(AP)—Democratic Representative Pierce of Oregon, and Republican Representative Angell of Oregon voted against the proposal to cut next year's WPA appropriation by one-third and turn administration of relief over to the states.

The move, defeated 140 to 183 in the house, was favored by Mott (R-Ore.)

BLANKET WAGE BOOST IS DENIED BY BOARD

Washington, June 12.—(AP)—The War Labor board announced today an award denying a blanket 20-per cent wage increase to workers at the Reynolds Metals company, Inc., aluminum plant at Longview, Wash.

John D. Galey, WLB arbitrator, ruled that the request of the Longview Federated Aluminum Council (AFL) was contrary to the spirit of a recent message delivered by President Roosevelt on general wage increases for labor.

LADIES DON'T LIKE

Olympia, Wash. (UP)—When the civilian defense agency put an air raid spotters' nest in the dome of the 287-foot statehouse it seemed a good idea. Women on the spotters' crew, however, objected to having to climb to the dome, so the nest isn't there any more.
