

News Behind The News

By Paul Mallon

Obviously no "plan" has yet caught their support. The one basic principle from which they are working is that this country shall not again be duped into disarmament.

One reader sent me a clipping from Clare Booth Luce's analysis in Life magazine of the great career of General Stillwell, the American fighter appointed by China's Chiang Kai Shek to head his armies. Mrs. Luce was trying to find out why the general went to China after the first World war, and interviewing him, she wrote:

"He said that when he returned home from France in 1919, he found 'a wave of pacifism' already in the making. . . I went right into Chauncey Fenton's office, the head of the war personnel department in Washington, and I said 'Chauncey, from here out the army is in for a terrible drubbing at the hands of the sob sisters and starchy idealists who think human beings ain't. I can't stay here and watch this country disarm and demobilize to the point of disaster. I'll just make me boiling mad, and I'll do or say something that will get me into trouble. So please give me a job that will remove me as far from this painful scene as possible.'"

He went to China.

THE general must have been madder yet in Burma where the fruits of this lack of American vigilance bitterly prevented him from getting the planes and tanks in time to stop the vicious Jap march of slaughter, rape and brutality.

This time this nation clearly is not going to dispense with the services of its heroic fighters who are now winning this war and depend for protection upon expensively purchased treaties which have never done the job before.

This is the direction, at least, which Mr. Roosevelt and Britain have taken in their Russian agreement. There are some who say the agreement may be a preliminary to selling the new deal around the world at the price of cancelling Allied obligations to us for war materials, but that suspicion has no strong evidence yet to back it.

The primary point of the British treaty with Russia is that the victors are going to stay in arms until they have positive security, as far as treaties go, it looks like this one ought to be kept.

If followed realistically, and if no effort is made by propaganda after the war to stampede our people into delivering their shirts as well as their lives into the hands of any power which has interests superior to our own national interests, the long armistice will carry a real security a long time into the future.

It may even mean "peace in our time", (Chamberlain's unwittingly ironic words as he waved the paper agreement signed at Munich before his people in England, a treaty in which even his faith was short-lived).

OTHER things which the majority of my readers seem anxious to insist upon are:

Free access to raw materials of the world (no more Dutch-British rubber combines for instance); freer world trade (extension of Hull's policy); a permanent anti-aggression policy both for this government and every one (let no ambition for empire spring up either in our country or any other place, and enforce this policy with a superior army, navy and air force, here or any place else on earth).

Keep your own peace with eternal vigilance and the strongest right arm in the world. Insist on fairness and justice in international affairs with real authority and not with meek, disarmed pacifism. Support democracy and your Christian principles in world affairs by powerful democratic and Christian example, and not by conquest or ambition for empire.

Then, after the world has come to appreciate fully the intelligence of our peaceful ways and inclinations, when it shares our native idealism, in twenty years, fifty years or one hundred—shows it conclusively—the time will have arrived when we may safely lay down our arms and trust in treaties. So say a majority of my readers to me.

SAFeway Homemakers' Guide

NUMBER 40 ★ Some masculine menus for Father's Day that are sure to make him happy
★ Father's favorite foods—all low priced ★ How Edna saved for a vacation

4 Father's Day menus that are guaranteed to make him beam

They come from the
Safeway Homemakers' Bureau

If you want to make this one of the happiest Father's Days he's ever had, simply do these two things. One, let him do whatever he chooses (garden, golf, fish, or what not) without interference of any kind. And two, serve him a leisurely dinner at home of all his favorite foods. Don't prepare anything dainty or fluffy. Serve hearty, masculine meals like these four that were planned by the Safeway Homemakers' Bureau.
