From Washington, D. C.
Seed Shipments
Going Overseas
AAA Disappointed
By Seed Deal
Direct Purchase
And Sale Wanted

By John W. Kelly

Washington, D. C., June 25.—Farmers in Washington and Oregon will be called upon to furnish carloads of hairy vetch and Austrian winter peas to England in the days to come. Ten trains of 60 cars each have rattled across the continent and the 600 carloads of seed have been shown aboard ship and landed safely in England. The shipments are charged up to lend-lease.

Expansion of seed cultivation in the northwest is scarcely six years old. It is part of the program to save the soil of southern planters and is worked out through the department of agriculture by Triple A, the commodity credit corporation and seed dealers. The soil conservation program in the south, using vetch and peas, started in 1938 when the department bought one million pounds at $5.40 per hundredweight for peas and $11 for vetch. The cost was deducted from Triple A payments to farmers. For the seed northwestern growers received $2.28 for peas and $6.18 for vetch. The spread between what the grower received and what the government paid went to distributors, wholesalers, jobbers, dealers and transportation.

By 1940 the growers had produced 53,000,000 pounds of peas and 26,000,000 of hairy vetch, which was four times the 10-year average and double the peak production up to that time. Triple A had launched an educational campaign among farmers of the Pacific northwest—apparently the only section where these seeds are grown satisfactorily. The seed trade bought a total of 35,000,000 pounds of the two seeds and growers sold the balance to commodity credit corporation, local southern dealers being paid 20 cents per hundredweight to distribute to farmers. Some 300,000 southern farmers planted the seed for a cover crop, compared with 140,000 farmers in 1933. When the program started less than three per cent of the farms had such a crop. The south is being rebuilt by farmers in far off Oregon and Washington.

THE supporting price in 1941 was not as good as growers thought it should be for peas and acreage was reduced, but the hairy vetch acreage increased and despite bad weather there was again a crop of approximately 26,000,000 pounds. Last year seed dealers asked Triple A to work out a plan which would permit them to handle the entire crop from grower to consumer, and this became Public Law 121. This provided that the trade should buy all of the crop at prices to the grower equal to the government support price and sell to southern dealers for distribution with a reasonable profit to the latter. Prices to the southern farmer were to be $4.80 for peas and $9.15 for vetch. Everything was in the hands of dealers.

Says Triple A, "it can draw no other conclusion than that the seed trade did not fulfill its end of the bargain." Only 3,000,000 pounds of peas and less than one million pounds of vetch were actually distributed at the agreed price. Outside of these amounts southern farmers were asked to pay $9 for peas and $12.70 for vetch. Despite this price charged southern farmers the northwest grower received only about the price originally guaranteed by the government.

TRIPLE A expects to be in the market for other seeds—redtop, rye grass, bent—to be used on the vast air field program. Cover must be provided for landing fields to avert damage to instruments and reduce risk of accidents. When and if Triple A goes into this it will operate through commodity credit corporation, along the line of the plan for peas and vetch. Seed prices charged farmers this spring—alfalfa, timothy, clover and common grasses—were 60 to 100 per cent higher than last year. Rape seed, needed by hog raisers, was bought by seedmen from the northwest last fall at three cents a pound and it was 25 cents a pound wholesale, 30 cents retail, this spring.

To prevent gross exploitation Triple A says it should be in position to buy the seed direct from farmers and dealers and resell to farmers. Such purchases, says AAA, would be in cooperation with patriotic elements in the seed trade, who would receive just profits for cleaning and otherwise processing and aiding in distribution, for the 1942 seed crop (hairy vetch and peas) Triple A calculates a spread of 80 cents a hundredweight on peas and 90 cents on vetch, of $16 and $18 a ton. The government agency wants western dealers to receive 50 per cent and this is being resisted by the southern distributors. Through an error this column stated the entire $16-$18 per ton was to go to western dealers. It is to be whacked up and on undetermined basis.

NO explanation is being given for kicking out the window the proposed senate investigation of the "prairie" route to Alaska. Everyone who has studied the highway is objecting to the route now being constructed by army engineers.
