Madison, Wis. (U.P.)—A block from the University of Wisconsin campus, with its scores of large buildings, is an old gray brick structure once used as a Madison grammar school. Today that building houses, if not the largest, at least the most widespread school in the world—the United States Army Institute.

The institute under the direction of Lt. Col. William R. Young, has been in operation since mid-April and recently turned out its first "graduate," Pvt. Joseph A. Benia, stationed at Chicago. Benia has completed a preparatory course in radio telephony and telegraphy.

More than 1,000 soldiers from all branches of the army have enrolled in the correspondence courses originating here. Anywhere up to 70,000 are expected

It's NOT Just a Matter of DOLLARS

OLD ABE LINCOLN had one main idea. He wanted to save the Union. But that didn't cause him to neglect his fellow men. Similarly, Standard has no thought except to help win the war. Day and night we concentrate on producing a prime munition. Yet another matter has Standard's attention.

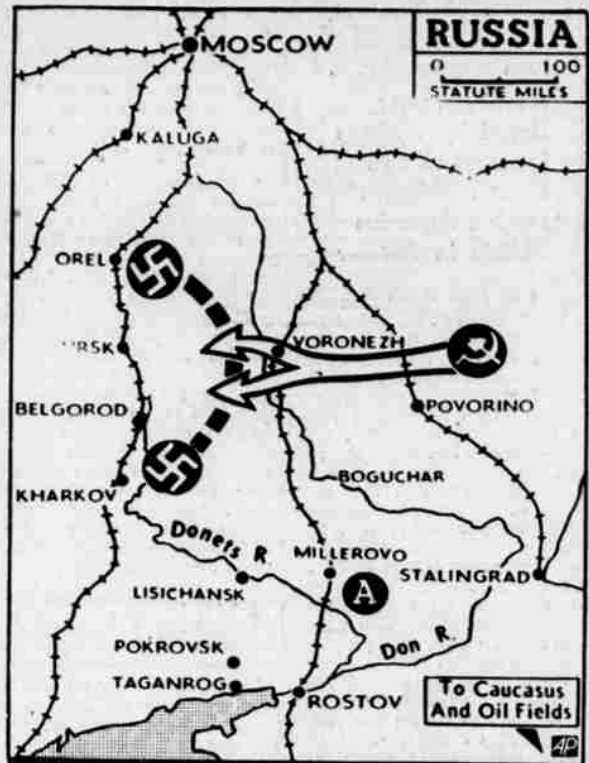

We're proud to say that, although we are in the front line production trenches, around 12 per cent of our personnel has stepped over into the fighting trenches. Already we have 2,056 stars in our service flag. We intend to see that these men get the best break we can give them.

Not only has each one received allowances generally running from 15 to 35 per cent of a year's pay, but all vacation time for which they were eligible has been translated into dollars. And why not? Every man of them wants to be a good soldier—and so do we.

In the past, Standard has tried to assure the future of its employees by providing fair pay, job-security, retirement benefits. Now the lads in the fighting services are assuring our future—and yours... and yours... and yours. It's turn about. We want it also to be fair play.

Reds Break Nazi Lines

German invasion formations (broken line) west of Voronezh were reported broken at two points by Red Army thrusts (arrow). Southeast of Millerovo (A), the Soviets waged strength-sapping rear guard actions against the Hitler spearhead aimed at vital Stalingrad.

to take advantage of the army service, which costs the student $2 per course. Most of the 60-odd courses are of the vocational type and none is for college credit. If the soldier wants college work, the army will pay half the bill at any of the 70 college extensions on its accredited list.

Preparations of the lessons and other academic work is done by faculty members, but all office work, such as mailing and keeping records, is handled by army personnel. Thirty army men are on the job now and more than 70 will be here when the school's enrollment rises to its expected peak.

Mathematical courses have been the most popular thus far, with arithmetic, bookkeeping, accounting and algebra leading the list. Other popular subjects are shorthand, English grammar, radio and typewriting.
