SCHOOL LUNCHES TO BE ADEQUATE IS SCC PROMISE

No Curtailment in Quality or Quantity Available is Word Given County P.-T.A.

No curtailment in quantity or quality of surplus commodities available for the school lunch program is expected in the coming year according to county Parent-Teacher officers. This information was gained from Roy Schwartz of the Portland office of the surplus commodities commission who was in Medford recently and attended a meeting of Parent-Teacher officers, school board members and school officials from all parts of the county.

Mr. Schwartz stated that the commission was actively promoting the serving of school lunches as part of the national war program, believing that adequate school lunches are a vital part of the fight against malnutrition. Mr. Schwartz said "school lunch programs should not be curtailed because of the war—rather they should be expanded because of the war."

No Transportation
Previously transportation costs of commodities used by schools has been met by the Oregon State Welfare commission, but this aid is no longer available and transportation costs must now be met by the sponsoring group. A supply depot for this locality has been set up at Grants Pass, Mr. Schwartz said, and Jackson county groups may obtain their supplies from it singly or in groups. The Oregon congress of Parent-Teacher associations is sponsoring a movement for a state fund to provide transportation.

Figures at the county school superintendent's office show that 29 schools out of 49 districts participated in the school lunch program last year, using surplus supplies, and that about four participated to a lesser degree. An effort is to be made this year to expand the number.

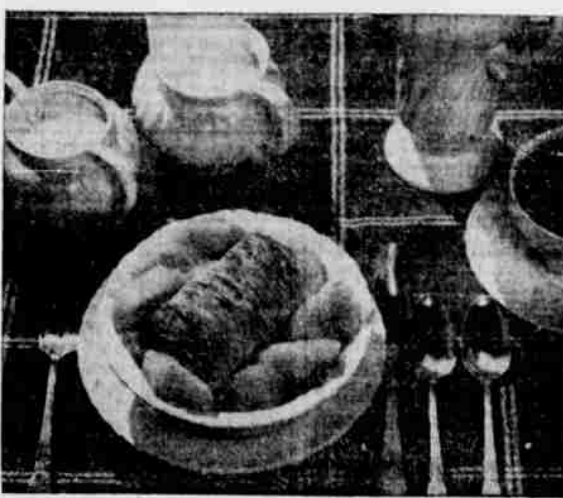

It has been announced that Jackson county has been included in the set-up which will supply WPA cooks to prepare school lunches the coming year.
