Roles—Action Plentiful.

Irene Dunne, one of Hollywood's loveliest screen stars, turns to the field of gay comes in "Lady in a Jam," which opens a three day engagement today at the Cool Craterian Theatre. In "Lady in a Jam" M. Dunne portrays an irresponsible New York heiress who broke and then proceeds to West, to the badlands of Arizona, to work an abandoned gold mine in a ghost town.

Patrick Knowles and Eugene Pallette have supporting roles with Ralph Bellamy and Queenie Vassar, a newcomer who is sure to be heard from again, according to advance reports from other points.

Knowles plays a sane young man who is in love with Miss Dunne and follows her to Arizona, much to the dismay of the local yokels. Ralph Bellamy is said to have his finest role as a definitely slaphappy cowboy who is also in love with Irene. It all starts when Miss Dunne, after she finds herself flat on Wall Street, decides to go to Arizona where she is sure her old aunt, known in them parts as "Cactus Kate", has a secret gold mine hidden away on some family property. Irene buys an old rattle-trap Ford and sets out for cactus country. The situation that catches up with her and her hectic past, make for one of the funniest Irene Dunne comedies since "The Awful Truth".

Judy Canova Stars
In Tuneful Comedy
On Holly's Screen

What the advance reports declare to be the snappiest, funniest, looniest laugh picture about an army camp since "Caught in the Draft", is opening a three day run today at the Holly Theatre. It is "True to the Army".

A four-star foursome heads the caper-cutting cast—Judy Canova, Allan Jones, Jerry Colonna, and Ann Miller.

onna and Ann Miller.

Judy plays a tight-rope walker in a small-town circus and while she's doing her stunt she sees, and is seen, by a group of gangsters who kill the circus owner and who also want to kill her because she knows too much. In order to escape from them and the police, who want her to testify against them, Judy hides out in an army camp where her boy-friend, Jerry Colonna, is a bewhiskered chief of the pigeon-trainers.

Jerry and Allan Jones, an ex-producer drafted into the army, get Judy into a uniform, cut her hair and try to pass her off on Sergeant William Demarest as just one of the boys. The trouble this leads to, and the fun is said to make "True to the Army".
