P.-T. A. Knows Value Of Careful Planning In Nutrition Field

(Contributed)

The secretary of agriculture talked on the national food situation Sunday, bringing to mind once again the importance of good nutrition. The value of planned, well-balanced meals to the health of school children has long been recognized by the Parent-Teacher association. Hot lunches for school children was one of the first P.-T. A. projects in Jackson county and teachers and parents alike were quick to notice the improvement in grades and the greater resistance to disease which resulted. Now hot lunches are served in nearly every school.

From this beginning the P.-T. A. has branched out, aiding in securing extra school and play ground equipment, helping with pre-school clinics and other health services, working for juvenile guidance and protection, and nursery schools, such as the Medford nursery school; also sponsoring study courses in parent education, first aid and home nursing.

These are only a few of the community services P.-T. A. has worked for nor are these projects confined to county or state, but rather are national in scope.

Through affiliation with the National Congress of P.-T. A., as well as the state branch, each local unit receives helpful publication and information. The material is practical and its value has been proven in communities all over the nation.

A year before the United Stats entered the war P.-T. A. began work on its present nutrition program and was ready when immediately after Pearl Harbor the government asked for national assistance in a nutrition campaign.
