Billy Hulen Says:

Pickem Climbs Onto Limb For "Bowl" Guesses

Since the regular grid season gasped its last Prof. I. Pickem, self-styled pigskin prophet, has been working out behind closed gates with his crystal ball in an effort to come up with some super-duper "bowl game" picks.

The anguish he suffered during the wacky regular campaign was terrible to behold. As a matter of fact, if the season had lasted another week Pickem would have gone quietly to a permanent residence in a padded cell.

Now, back in fine mental form, he climbs blithely out on the New Year's Day limb and offers the following on the games of January 1:

ROSE BOWL. As proved all year, nothing is impossible when 22 huskies start belting each other around on the gridiron. (Witness Holy Cross over Boston College, Auburn over Georgia, Redskins over Bears, etc.) Therefore, U. C. L. A. COULD defeat Georgia and Frank Sinkwich. But as Pickem sees it, coast conference football this season was far below the national average and the Uclans won't do anything to bring it up. The professor likes the Bulldogs from the deep south. 27 to 13.

SHRINE GAME. Year after year the East all-stars have the All-Americans, the West just a bunch of guys named "Joe." Yet, consistently, the West wins with better teamwork. Nevertheless, Pickem can't see how Jurkovich and Kennedy can match Governali, Daley, Dove, etc. The East, by 14 to 7.

SUGAR BOWL. This may be the best battle of the day. Tulsa, the only perfect-record team in the nation, among the major schools, has a great passing combination (Glenn Dobbs to Saxon Judd), while Tennessee has the fine Bobby Clifers and a reputation for pure savagery on the field. The pickster, out of the hat, likes Tulsa, about 20 to 14.

ORANGE BOWL. Until the Holy Cross debacle, Boston college was considered tops in the country, the "Chicago Bears" of college football. Alabama, while plenty potent, wasn't sensational. On the theory that B. C. has forgotten the Holy Cross stunner and will return to its true form, Pickem selects the easterners, 7 to 0.

COTTON BOWL. Georgia Tech, prior to facing Georgia in the final game of the regular season, was unbeaten and untied. Clint Castleberry, the freshman flash, was being tabbed All-American. Then came Georgia to spoil a perfect season, but even so the Yellowjackets ended with one of the best records in America. Pickem believes they will trim a Texas Longhorn eleven that lost to Northwestern and Texas Christian. Score: Tech 21, Texas 7.

SUN BOWL. The 2nd Army Air Force Bombers from Spokane, with a bunch of ex-college and professional stars, appear too powerful for Hardin-Simmons of the Border conference. The fliers to win by 20 to 6.

DUNSMUIR COACH TAKES NEW POST

Sacramento, Dec. 31.—(U.P.)—George Bican, former Washington State college all-around athlete, has resigned his job as football coach at Dunsmuir, Cal., high school to accept a position as football coach at McClatchy high school of Sacramento, it was learned here today.

The appointment is expected to be made next Monday night. He played football in high school and junior college here a decade ago before going to Washington State, where he played varsity football three years.

George is a younger brother of Nick Bican, who played football for California and the San Francisco Olympic club.

Big 10 Still Bars Frosh Competition

Chicago, Dec. 31.—(U.P.)—The Big Ten, at least temporarily, will continue to enforce the freshman rule for intercollegiate athletic competition despite a recommendation by the National Collegiate Athletic association to rescind the regulation for the duration, Major John L. Griffith, conference commissioner, said today.

Georgia, Uclans Set For Battle—East 10-6 Over West

TEAMS KEYED TO FIGHTING PITCH; GEORGIA FAVORED

Sentiment Grows For Underdog Ukes—Role of Frankie Sinkwich Doubtful.

By Leo H. Petersen
United Press Sports Editor
Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 31.—(U.P.) Two rough, tough ball clubs came up to the final preliminaries for their Rose Bowl football game today.

Coaches Babe Horrell of UCLA and Wallace Butts of Georgia had their players keyed to such a high pitch that they were bickering among themselves. That's the best sign in the world they are ready for tomorrow's annual blue-ribbon classic.

Butts was leary lest his squad had been sharpened too fine. "Maybe we've worked the boys a little too hard," he said. "I'll let them off easy again today."

Horrell pronounced his Bruins in perfect condition. "If we lose, we'll have no alibi," the Babe said.

He also planned only a light workout for the team on the Rose Bowl gridiron this afternoon.

Latest odds still favored Georgia but growing sentiment was indicated for the big UCLA eleven. The Bruins looked good in workouts yesterday and they might be a lot tougher than pregame dope indicates.

The role Frankie Sinkwich, the Bulldogs' running and passing wizard, will play in the game was still doubtful. He will start and Coach Butts is counting on him even though the right ankle he twisted in a workout last week is still painful.

Hurts Ankle Again
The All-American fullback hurt his right ankle again in practice yesterday.

He was running through a signal drill when he suddenly twisted the weak ankle and was forced to stop practice.

"Frankie is the kind of a boy who will play a game on courage alone, if necessary," Butts said. "He'll do all right."

But the fact remained Frankie will not be at his best. He won't be able to punt or run like he used to. He can't shift quickly without pain, but he said the ankle felt okay as long as he runs straight ahead.

So Fireball Frankie's role will probably be one of passing and inspirational leadership. There is nothing wrong with his throwing arm. Because he is the coolest player on the Georgia team, Coach Butts is sure to start him for the steady influence he has on his teammates.

If Frankie should falter, Charles Tripp will be ready to take over. Should Georgia win, he may be the hero of the game for he has been coming along fast and can run, throw and kick.

For UCLA, the offensive burden again will fall on Bobby Waterfield. His passing is always a threat, but should Georgia's air defense prove too tight, he can also run with the ball.

ZOO OFFERS LION CUBS
Los Angeles, Ca.—(U.P.)—The Griffith Park Zoo has so many young lions on its hands it doesn't know what to do. It has therefore authorized the city salvage department to find comfortable homes in private families for two young lion cubs about 7 months old.

ANDY KERR TEAM GIRDS TO AVENGE PREVIOUS LOSSES

Paul Governali Leads Great Array of Stars—Hollingbery is Pessimistic.

By Dan McGuire
United Press Correspondent
San Francisco, Dec. 31.—(U.P.)—Odds favoring the All-East team to defeat the West in the 18th Annual Shrine Crippled Children's Benefit game tomorrow were quoted at 10-6 today.

Reports from Santa Clara, where the East squad has been billeted, claimed Coach Andy Kerr had his players keyed up to avenge the sorry showing of their predecessors in the past five Shrine contests which show three West wins and two ties.

The East's attitude was exemplified by a statement from "Passin' Paul" Governali, Columbia quarterback, who stood out in a long offensive drill yesterday. After completing tosses to ends Dave Schreiner of Wisconsin and Bob Dove of Notre Dame with monotonous regularity, Governali said:

"I can do better than that and I will with a little more work."

Kerr has not named a starting eleven but the "A" team in practice has consisted of Schreiner and Dove at the flanks; All-Americans Dick Wildung of Minnesota and Al Wistert of Michigan at the tackles; Harry Wright, Notre Dame, and John Billman, Minnesota, guards; Spencer Moseley, Yale, center; George Celtham, Michigan, quarterback; Governali and Bill Daley, Minnesota, halfbacks; and Steve Filipowicz, Fordham, fullback.

Kerr and his aides—Dr. George Houser of Minnesota and Dud DeGroot of Rochester—still are worried that Coach Orrin (Babe) Hollingbery is trying to put something over on them with his pronouncements that the West has no passer to match Governali, Daley, or Filipowicz.

Afraid of Passes
"I haven't forgotten that the West has beaten us by passes before when they were supposed to lack capable pitchers," Kerr said. "We aren't going to be caught napping this year for we've had plenty of pass defense work."

Hollingbery, who has been known more as an optimist than a pessimist during his 20-odd years at Washington State, has gone out of character with dire predictions on the outcome of the game.

"This team hasn't the balance of previous West squads," he declared at Stanford.

But the general feeling of gloom was broken when Glenn (Pop) Warner, the "old fox" of the gridiron, walked over to the practice field from his Palo Alto home and described the West as a "dream team."

Hollingbery's starting lineup may be as follows:
Ends, Al Beale, Santa Clara, and Nick Suseoff, Washington State; tackles, Ed Stamm, Stanford, and Norm Verry, Southern California; guards, Bruno Banducci and Church Taylor, both of Stanford; quarterback, Willie Zapalac, Texas A. & M.; halfbacks, Bob Kennedy, Washington State, and Bob Steuber, Missouri; fullback, Tom Roblin, Oregon.

Stamm and Kennedy were elected co-captains by their teammates.

In the overall history of the game, the West has triumphed on 10 occasions with five decisions going to the East.

Hunters are expected to add 135 million pounds of meat to the nation's food supply in the next 12 months.

'BAMA CYCLONE BASIS OF BEST LIE IN CONTEST

Southerner's Tall Tale of Using "Twister" to Hunt Squirrels Wins 1942 Title

Burlington, Wis., Dec. 31.—(U.P.)—The best dog in the country can't hold a candle to an Alabama cyclone at chasing up squirrels for a hunter, U. U. Kamp, Gadsden, Ala., said today in a prize fib that won him the Burlington Liars' club world's championship for 1942.

"Other hunters can brag about their dogs all they want to, but for the best huntin' I'll take a good old Alabama twister any time," Kemp insisted in the whopper that gave him possession for 1943 of the club's diamond studded (10-cent store) lyre, emblematic of the title which has been bestowed annually since 1929.

Once Upon A Time
"Why, once I was standing in the window of my home on Sand mountain, watching trees and buildings sailing over the house," Kemp related. "I noticed a tree going with a squirrel in it. Calling Madge, my wife, to bring me my old rifle I went out in the yard, and in the next 30 minutes I shot 10 squirrels out of trees that went sailing over."

"Now, you tell me of a dog that will top that, chasing 'em right in front of your gun without you moving out of your tracks! I could easily have killed more, but 10 squirrels a day is the limit in Alabama."

Kemp was the choice of the club's officers to succeed R. C. Cross, Wausau, Wis., who was the 1941 champion. Participating in the annual New Year's eve winnowing and sifting by which the best lie of 1942 was chosen from 6,000 entries were Club President Otis C. Hulett, Vice President Gilbert Karcher and Secretary L. J. Stang.

Cited for honorable mention were Henry R. Gibbons, Portland, Me., who said he picked up his fallen arches to bridge a river and let his regiment cross; Fred F. Prior, Ashland, Ill., who told how 300 passengers aboard a liner foiled a torpedo attack by gripping the rail and lifting the ship out of the water, and Travis Gissendanner, Newport News, Va., who said a fall in his automobile in the Blue Ridge mountains created such a jar in the car radio that it knocked the needle off a record being played at a Richmond station 100 miles away.

Hulett reported that the entries fell off this year and urged more participation by men and women in the nation's service, although he conceded that it would be difficult to tell lies which would top some servicemen's actual experiences. He said the club had designated Mary Jo McCarthy, Burlington's first WAAC at Daytona Beach, Fla., as "recruiting officer" to enroll feminine prevaricators among the women's auxiliary army corps.

Eliminating use of asbestos textiles in unnecessary products will save approximately 750,000 pounds of these textiles for war purposes.
