COUNT WILL BRING CLEAR PICTURE OF EUROPE OF TODAY

Count Byron De Prorok, who will speak in Medford next Tuesday evening at the high school auditorium, will bring to his audience a clear picture of people and places now in the daily news in Europe and North Africa. Of Polish and French parentage, the count was educated in Europe and through the contacts of his French relatives, many of whom were diplomatic officials, knows well DeGaulle, Giraud and other leading Frenchmen.

The count is an archeologist of note, and between 1936 and 1940 he conducted explorations in North Africa, living in the section where the Allied and Axis forces are now battling daily. With this wealth of background, it is thought the speaker should have much to offer on his subject, "The Free French."

Count De Prorok is now touring this country speaking before forums, civic clubs, public gatherings and at many army camps. He is making several appearances in Washington and will stop in Medford en route to California. The count has the reputation of being a dynamic and dramatic speaker, with a perfect command of the English language, which he speaks without accent.

The lecture will be at the high school auditorium at 8 p. m. Count De Prorok is being brought here by the Jackson County League of Women Voters, who are offering his lecture to the public without charge.

FORESTRY BILLS MADE READY FOR ACTION IN HOUSE

Salem, Ore., Jan. 22—(U.P.)—The house forestry committee readied a series of amendatory bills today on acquisition and conservation of timber lands to put additional teeth into what lumbermen consider the nation's model regulation of timber cutting practice.

Rep. Ralph C. Hill, Douglas county, presided over his eight-man committee while representatives from the state forestry department outlined measures necessary to close all loopholes in Oregon's recent conservation act.

Among the leading amendments which the committee will sponsor on the floor of the house was a bill defining what lands may be reclassified as reforestation areas. The bill is an attempt to meet the objections in what Hill said were "certain timbered locations" in the state.

The bill also would reduce the tax on lands in the process of reforestation in eastern Oregon districts from 4 cents to 2½ cents, he said, to induce owners of land suitable for only production of timber to place the lands under reforestation.

At present about 15 per cent of total United States munitions production is going to our allies under lend-lease and by direct purchase.
