

JACKSON COUNTY BOND SALE LAG SPURS EFFORTS

Schools, Theaters Help—
Final Auction Slated For City Park Thursday Night.

With the drive fast drawing to a close and the county's quota in the Third Victory Loan campaign but three-fourths subscribed, every effort will be made this week to boost war bond sales, it was stated today by George T. Frey, drive chairman. Special campaigns are being carried on through the schools of the county, a special show is being arranged at the Holly theater tomorrow night and a final auction and program will be staged at the Medford city park Thursday night.

Tomorrow noon senior high school students are staging a bond sale rally on the lawn of the school building, with members of the H. E. C. A. club, of which Bernice Stearnes is president, in charge. Pep talks will be given by Roy Casebeer and Harry Nordwick, student body president and vice-president, the school band will play and the girls' trio will sing.

Teachers Help
To stimulate sales of stamps and bonds in the rural areas, Charles R. Bowman, county superintendent, issued bulletins to each school last Saturday. Teachers and pupils were urged to fill stamp books and convert them into bonds before close of the drive.

Plans are now being formulated for the program and auction here Thursday and Lloyd Rupp, who has been staging the affairs, asks that anyone having articles to donate to the auction either bring them to the office of the Central Labor Council, 123 1/2 West Main St., over the Chamber of Commerce, or call the office, 5100. The program has been scheduled for 8 p. m. and will open with music by the Camp White band.

Ashland Generous
Ashland and county residents paid out $35,000 for bonds and the auction articles at the program held in Ashland last night. On the program were Sebastian Apollo's accordion band from Medford, Floyd K. Dover, veteran of the first World War, and the Camp White band and entertainers as well as several other numbers. Bond committee members attending from here report a large crowd and sales heavier than for any other previous auction. A. H. Dudley of Phoenix again acted as auctioneer.

Mr. Frey pointed out today that while sales are disappointingly slow in the county, they are about 75 per cent of the quota while state sales so far are but 65 per cent of the quota. He stated that while officially the drive closes Sept. 30, in order to cover the outlying districts more thoroughly and bring figures up to date, sales up to Oct. 2 would be counted in. Sales in the county up to this morning, but not including the Ashland sales last night, were

First U. S. Plane Lands at Newly Captured Munda Airfield

Against a backdrop of blackened and shell-scarred remnants of palm trees, this Corsair P4U fighter plane was the first to land on the recently captured Munda airfield on New Georgia Island. The bright, new landing strip on which Major R. G. Owens, USMC, of Greenville, S. C., landed his ship was completely rebuilt by a Navy "Sea Bee" battalion in 46 hours. Official U. S. GASOLINE PANEL LAUDED BY OPA

Two auditors from the state gasoline ration department have made a careful check of the work of the local gasoline panel and have made the following report to the local war price and rationing board:

"Upon completion of our audit of your mileage files, we find that your board (gasoline panel) has followed the regulations very closely, the files are complete and exceptionally well kept. This made our work much easier and enabled us to accomplish it in a minimum of time. This all adds up to the fact that your mileage panel is doing a very fine job for the O. P. A., for the board, and for the people of Medford and vicinity."

3 OUT OF 4 HURT RUSSIANS RETURN TO FIGHT AGAIN

Present Ratio Compares
With 2 Out of 5 in First War—Sulfa Responsible.

Washington (UP)—Russian soldiers injured in battle today stand far greater chances of returning to combat than their fathers did in the war of 1914-18, according to statistics recently released by the commissar of health of the USSR.

Assume 20 men are wounded. Of these 15 will return to active combat. During World War I, only eight men of the same group would have been able to resume fighting. In other words, an army casualty of 1914-18 in two cases out of five returned to battle; today the ratio is three out of four.

First-Aid Speedy
The high percentage of recoveries in the present war can be explained by the speed with which aid is given the injured. Often before enemy firing has ceased, doctors, nurses and aides are on the battlefield ministering to wounded soldiers. Plasma transfusions are given those in danger of shock; sulfa dressings are applied to severe wounds, and as quickly as possible men are removed from the battlefield.

Before being transported to highly-specialized base hospitals, the wounded are classified according to the type of care needed and then dispatched to the hospital best able to give the needed treatment.

Evacuation behind the lines is carried out by ambulance or airplane. Airplanes, particularly in recent months, have proved their efficiency in carrying men to base hospitals far beyond the range of enemy fire. Mobile hospital units near the front handle emergency surgical services.

During the last war between 45 and 50 per cent of the men who received bladder wounds died. By the development of new methods of treatment, the mortality rate has been reduced to 25 per cent. Figures quoted in chest wound recoveries are similar.

Eyesight Preserved
Specialists have developed a high degree of skill in preserving eyesight and in skin grafting.

Injuries to the extremities constitute a large proportion of the wounds. During the early years of World War I, amputation was necessary in six to eight per cent of all cases; today it is slightly more than two per cent.

In addition to full-time staffs, the hospitals have consultant staffs, called in to determine the best procedure to follow in severe or difficult cases. Each hospital is well supplied with serum and whole blood and plasma.

Gymnastics, in many cases, restore coordination and strength to affected joints and injured limbs. Experts in dietetics serve at all hospitals. Despite great privation in Russia, wounded soldiers are well fed. Children and elderly persons, unfit for combat duty, frequently serve as hospital orderlies and volunteer nurses.

Through the combination of these factors, the death rate of the wounded during recent months of the war has been but 1.1 per cent, the commissar concluded.

PATROL ACTIVITY TESTS STRENGTH OF REDS, BLUES

By Jerry Hannifin
United Press Staff Correspondent
Fourth Corps Headquarters,
Oregon Maneuver Area, Sept. 28

—(UP)—Sporadic patrol activity flared today as the Reds and Blues tested each other's strength, apparently preparing for the eventual major clash which will involve the heaviest units of both armies.

Lt. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, chief of army ground forces, was on hand to watch training progress and to inspect troop field installation of both armies as the third battle of Oregon goes on.

The armies took their positions somewhere in the 65-mile area from the Crooked river on the north to the district just south of Wagonville on Highway 395. Torps were scattered over portions of Harney, Crook, Lake and Deschutes counties, but dispositions of major forces were undisclosed.

John Clouston, liaison representative of the U. S. forestry service, with the fourth corps during maneuvers, today commended the army for its cooperation in helping to control occasional fires in the 10,000 square mile area.

TRANSPORT GASOLINE BOOKS BEING MAILED

New gasoline coupon books for users of transport gasoline are now being mailed out from the local war price and ration board, it was stated today. It will not be necessary, as in the past, for holders of TT gasoline books to mail, or present, their certificates of necessity to the board. It is expected that bulk of the mailing will be completed by Oct. 1.

Studebaker suggests 5 ways to guard your car's mileage

DON'T wait until something happens to your car! Even experienced motorists don't always realize that limited mileage, slower speed and increased town use create new operating conditions which may cause trouble.

Have your car checked frequently by expert mechanics. Often, just a few simple adjustments will assure you a lot more essential mileage. What's more, taking adequate precautions now may save you the cost of serious repairs later on.

Care for your car for your country!
