SPRAINED ANKLES
Sprained ankles result in much pain, swelling, stiffness, and loss of work. Many different forms of treatment have been instituted for them. The prevalent idea has been that a sprained ankle should be kept strictly quiet. Naturopathic physicians have long recognized that moderate sensible use with judgment is beneficial. Now a Navy doctor observes that in case of sprained ankle, the foot should be given immediate active use. He bases his conclusion on the observation of over 500 cases of severe and moderate sprains among service men. Cases given immediate and continued use had the most rapid recovery, had less swelling, stiffness, and pain. Judgment must be employed in the use of such an ankle according to its degree of injury. No strenuous exercise should be taken. Active use is considered important. The conclusion is that "it improves the circulation and promotes tissue metabolism and repair."

Police said the office door was opened with a key which was found perfectly and that a shelf, where the money box was hidden, was thoroughly ransacked.

What's Doing at U. S. O.'s

West Main USO
An interesting evening was spent at Main street USO Friday, when servicemen and their wives and USO council members inspected the recently redecorated rooms. New furnishings throughout the library follow the color scheme of rose and a light shade of green. Other new furnishings include two large davenport and chairs in blue and rust colors in the large room which will be used for party games, singfests, movies, etc., and the newly completed voice recording room with machines for the use of servicemen and WACS for making records to send home. Another added feature at the club is the photography room, complete for developing, printing and enlarging photos. Plans are under way for organizing a photography club.

Mrs. Eve Prentice and 12 acedean students presented several numbers between 8 and 10 o'clock. Miss Mary Ann Gates rendered several solos during the evening. Also, numbers were presented by Pvt. Michael San Felipe of the 35th Engineers unit and Pvt. Jack Street from the Medford airmen.

Refreshments were served later. Adjutant and Mrs. Chas. K. Cox, directors of the Main street USO club, were in charge, and club hostesses serving were Mrs. Martin Westwood, Mrs. A. J. Hanby, Mrs. Ted Thompson, Mrs. Harvey Fields, Mrs. W. W. Howard, Miss Lottie Mae Watkins, Mrs. C. Aldrich, Mrs. Ruth Renken and Miss Helen Hanson.

CIVILIAN DEFENSE CHANGES TALKED AT SALEM MEET

Frank Hull, civilian defense coordinator for Jackson county, and Syd I. Brown, sheriff, are in Salem today to attend a meeting of civilian defense officials called by Jerrold Owen, state administrator. The meeting was called to consider changing conditions in the military situation affecting civilian defense and to draft plans to meet these conditions.

State and local civilian defense officials have been distressed by an increasing lack of interest in civilian defense activities, according to Mr. Hull, who stated before he left for Salem that recent conditions have brought about a feeling of false security.

Mr. Hull quoted Lt. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, commanding general of the Western Defense Command, who recently said, "One of the matters of great concern to me is the maintenance of an adequate civilian defense structure throughout the coastal states, and it is disturbing to learn that a number of essential civilian defense workers are resigning, perhaps in the belief that the need for their services no longer exists."

Play By Play
Yanks First: Crosetti, Metheny and Johnson struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Combat Flying Is Hard On Hearing
Chicago, Oct. 11—(U.P.) No combat aviator will return from this war with normal hearing. Dr. Walter Hughson of the otological research laboratory, Abington, Pa., Memorial hospital, said today.

"This can properly be assumed despite the fact that his induction required perfect hearing," he said. "The two main causes are sudden changes of pressure such as aviators experience in dive bombing and high altitude flying, and the constant noise of motors and guns."

HEAT POPPED POPCORN
Fort Smith, Ark.—(U.P.) There have been lots of tall tales about the heat this past summer, but Leo M. Ermon of Fort Smith swears to this one: It was so hot that an ear of popcorn in his garden "popped" inside the shack.

Craterian Star

Sparked by the new songs and interesting drama of Deanna Durbin, who is paired with popular Joseph Cotten, "Hers to Hold" is pleasing audiences at the Craterian where the picture is billed through tomorrow night.
