

GIRL SCOUTS LONG ACTIVE AGENCY IN MEDFORD DISTRICT

Girl Scouts, one of the major benefiting agencies of the Medford Community Chest, has been operating in the city for the past 18 years. The annual chest drive is to start Oct. 18, with A. S. Cummins heading the campaign committee.

From one troop in 1927, Girl Scouts have grown until now the council takes in Medford, Jacksonville, Central Point, Phoenix and all rural school districts in the immediate vicinity and there are seven Brownie troops with a membership of 202, 18 intermediate troops with a membership of 281 and three senior troops with 40 registered.

Activities of the senior Scouts include working as volunteers in local hospitals, assisting at the airport canteen and at the Medford day nursery. Younger Scouts sell defense stamps, deliver posters for community organizations, work with the Junior Red Cross in making articles for the Camp White hospital and carry on other projects. Badge work which the girls may select includes home nursing, child care, citizenship, community service, housekeeping, cooking and gardening. Get-together events are held for each age group during the year to foster friendships.

In addition to the group activities carried on by the various troops, the local council sponsors a Day Camp for three days each week during the month of June which is open to every girl in this section and in August each year two weeks established camping is held at Lake O' Woods.

The various troops have as leaders local women who are trained in group work, troop programs and child guidance by the council executive secretary.

It is pointed out by Girl Scout leaders that the organization is international and that it is considered one of the country's outstanding character building groups for girls. In the organization there is no discrimination against race, religion or politics. Any girl may become a member.

WEATHERFORD TO ATTEND MEETINGS

Rev. Fred M. Weatherford left last night on a three-mission tour. Today he will attend in Portland the board of trustees meeting representing the Anti-Liquor League of Oregon, also sessions of the National Association of Evangelicals, of which he is a director. Wednesday he will attend the board of regents meeting of the Northwest Nazarene college at Nampa, Ida.

Mr. Weatherford recently received word that his name is to be included in Who's Who of the Western Hemisphere for the current year.

DEATH COMES TO ALBERT BURCH, 76 NOTED ENGINEER

not is typical of his early experiences in the rapidly developing mining field.

From the famous "Homestead" the young mining engineer became the superintendent of the equally famous Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine in the Coeur d'Alenes, the largest silver and lead mine in the world, before he entered the independent profession of mining engineering as mining expert and consultant.

His professional duties took him gradually from the Dakota Black Hills through mineral regions of Utah, Idaho and Nevada to the second largest gold mine in the country, the great bonanza known as "Goldfield Consolidated," which he managed from 1911 until the start of the World War. But Mr. Burch preferred less confining and more varied professional service so he gradually got more and more out of the management department of mining and more and more into the engineering and consulting end.

World Reputation In this profession he rose so rapidly that before he came to Southern Oregon to make his home Mr. Burch was recognized at home and abroad as one of the three or four foremost mining engineers of the world.

In fact after coming to Medford where he took over the management of his pear orchard, and became active not only in the local farm and fruit organizations but in the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations, his professional reputation was so high that former President Hoover made a special visit to Medford to try to induce him to take charge of the Hoover mineral properties in Australia. In spite of a salary in six figures, however, Mr. Burch decided his more useful service and greater contentment would be found here in the Rogue River valley with his quiet home in the country as his permanent headquarters.

Until his last illness, however, Mr. Burch was one of the most active and sought-after mining consultants on the entire Pacific coast, a list of his clientele back through the half century reading like a Who's Who in high finance, from Cyrus McCormick, Mrs. Potter Palmer and J. P. Morgan in the early days through John Borden, Bernard Baruch and the Union Pacific railroad in more recent ones.

Author Of Note In addition to his brilliant career in his profession, Mr. Burch was an author of some note, having written a history of mining in Oregon and being co-author with S. H. Dolbear of the book "Chromite," as well as contributor of innumerable technical articles to mining, engineering and scientific periodicals and magazines.

Not only was Mr. Burch honored by membership in practically all the famous mining and engineering societies, both national and international; but he served as vice president of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, was chairman of the Oregon State Department of Geology and Mineral Industries, as well as for many a member of the State Board of Higher Education, which controls all institutions of higher learning in the state. In fact the list of the honors and offices held through the half century of the deceased's greatest activity would come close to filling a volume in itself.

Among other high positions he held were consultant engineer for the Pacific Mining company and the Benton Mining company, both in Oregon; consultant for the Mountain Copper company, one of the largest mining concerns in California, and consultant for many other companies throughout the United States.

Mr. Burch was twice married, first to Mary Louise Aylsworth Stewart of Denver, Colo., who died in Medford in 1931, and later to Marguerite A. Dinsmore Backus of Medford who survives. Others surviving are two daughters of the first marriage, Mrs. Max Smith of Wallace, Idaho and Mrs. E. A. Pond of Oakland, Calif.; one step-daughter, Mrs. Robert Sterling of Boulder, Colo.; one sister, Miss Charlotte Burch of Santa Barbara, Calif. He also had two grandchildren, one a lieutenant in the U. S. navy.

Funeral services will be conducted from the Perl funeral home Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Medford lodge 103, A. F. and A. M. will have complete charge of the services, and entombment will take place in Medford Memorial Mausoleum. Friends are respectfully invited to attend the funeral service. Entombment service at the mausoleum will be private.

ATTACK ON WAKE MAJOR OPERATION REPORTS REVEAL

By United Press

The first full report of the American air-sea attack on Wake island revealed today that the largest concentration of aircraft carriers in the history of naval warfare dared the Japanese in an assault that probably demolished the enemy base.

Malcolm R. Johnson, United Press correspondent who witnessed the attack last Tuesday and Wednesday from the air and aboard ship, said it was so effective that Wake either must be rebuilt entirely by the enemy or given up.

In the southwest Pacific, American Liberator bombers attacked the oil port of Macassar, in the Celebes, unloading 25 tons of bombs after dusk Saturday, and setting fires visible 90 miles.

Australian ground troops cut through light opposition in the Ramu valley of New Guinea and were reported within 25 miles of the coast about 40 miles below the Japanese base at Madang.

Minor Japanese air attacks against Allied southwest Pacific bases were reported and Tokyo radio said that an Allied medium transport had been sunk Sunday night off the northeast New Guinea coast.
