

TORNADO-PELICAN GAME IMPORTANT IN DISTRICT RACE

Pair, With Cavemen, Only
Ones Unbeaten — Klamath Has Brilliant Record.

The game that may well decide the high school football championship of the southern Oregon district, and with it the right to compete for the official state prep title, will be played on Modoc field in Klamath Falls Friday night between Medford's Black Tornado and the heavy-scoring Klamath Pelicans.

The two, with Grants Pass, are the only major eleven still unbeaten in this district. Ashland has lost to Klamath, Marshfield has been beaten by Grants Pass and Medford, North Bend has been whacked by Grants Pass and Bend has felt the club of the Cavemen. Roseburg, also in the southern Oregon district, hasn't played a district team but was beaten last Friday, 7 to 0 by University high of Eugene, which isn't rated overly strong.

State Split
The state has been split into four districts, with the four teams boasting the best records within their respective districts slated to enter the championship playoffs. Thus, the loser of the Medford-Klamath game will be virtually eliminated from district title consideration and the chance at the state championship.

Frank Ramsey's Pelicans, four deep in almost every position, have compiled the most glittering record of any prep team in Oregon. In four games they have piled up 140 points to their opponents' 32, an average of 35 points to eight. They have defeated, in succession, Ashland by a 31 to 13 score; Grant high, co-leader of the Portland circuit, 7 to 6; Salem, 31 to 13 and Oregon City, 71 to 0.

Against that terrific eschelon, Lorne Arnold's Black Tornado can show 53 points scored in three games as compared to 20 for the opposition, or an average of 17.7 against the foe's 6.7. Medford has whipped Yreka, Calif., 33 to 13 and Marshfield, 14 to 0. The locals tied Eureka, Calif., 6 to 6 last Saturday.

Both Run
Klamath, thus far, has relied mainly on a powerful running attack stemming from the single wing, with very few passes. Medford has done the same, and has more or less played very conservative football. History has proved, however, that past performances mean little or nothing when the two perennial southern Oregon powers meet in their annual classic, and it would surprise nobody to see one or both open up with fancy stuff they haven't displayed all year.

$6,123.20 GOES TO EACH YANKEE

St. Louis, Oct. 12.—(U.P.)—The New York Yankees, cutting the winners' share of the world series "melon," each found themselves $6,123.20 richer today when their share of the receipts, $204,962.41, was divided.

The St. Louis Cardinals each gathered $4321.99. The Yanks voted $9020 to former teammates now in the armed forces and the Red Birds voted several awards of $500 to last year's members, now in the service.

A share of the receipts amounting to $146,401.72 will be divided among the second, third and fourth place clubs in each league.

War Produces Biggest Boom In History Of Horse Racing

By Jack Cuddy
United Press Staff Correspondent.
New York, Oct. 12.—(U.P.)—As world series frenzy subsides let us take a quick gander at that most amazing of wartime sports—horse racing—which, in the New York area at least, is completing the most fabulous chapter in turf history.

Never before has racing in one locality recorded the staggering figures for money handled or attendance that are disclosed in the state racing commission's report for 159 days of the metropolitan season, including Belmont park's program Saturday.

The mutual handle for those 159 days totaled $231,618,065—an increase of $86,215,695 over the corresponding 159 days last year. Total attendance was 2,938,997 persons—almost as many as the 3,007,490 who attended the combined home games of the Yankees, Dodgers and Giants in their big-attendance season of 1941.

These million figures are more comprehensible when broken down into an average of 18,484 persons who went to the track daily this season; each person betting an average of $10.30 a race, and an average of $78.80 a day. That's tops in per capita wagering on any sport over an extended period. Last year, an average of 14,842 persons each bet $7.99 a race and $60.76 a day.

Three racing plants operated in the metropolis during those 159 golden days, but only one at a time—Belmont, Aqueduct and Jamaica. Belmont's concluding meeting closed Saturday; yesterday the horses started running again at Jamaica where they will continue until well into November. By that time the total mutual handle for '43 may approach $275,000,000.

The daily average handle this year has been $1,456,717, exceeding last year's average of $901,901 per day. A new all-time record handle for a single day was established at Aqueduct on Labor day when 40,826 persons wagered $2,926,702. That was when With Regards won the $10,000 Aqueduct handicap. Racing officials give three reasons for the big crowds and heavy betting at the track: (1) the public's war prosperity; (2) the public's inability to spend its money on such things as new automobiles, radios, and luxuries; and (3) the public's war-sharpened yen for entertainment.

LUGGAGE UNDER PRICE CONTROL

Washington, Oct. 12.—(U.P.)—The Office of Price Administration today placed all types of luggage under uniform price control, effective Oct. 18, in a move to check "unjustifiable" increases.

New price regulations will apply at all levels of the trade but the extent of reduction in prices to consumers will vary from store to store, the OPA said.

Under the new regulation, tags bearing the specific top legal retail price must be attached to each item of luggage by the manufacturer. This tag cannot be removed until the luggage is delivered to the consumer. Manufacturers will calculate retail ceiling prices on the basis of fixed mark-ups on their own maximums.

BOWLING

In City league games last night, Signal Oil defeated Murray's Maid-Rite, 3 to 0 (Sims 587, Sims 217); Domestic Laundry defeated Your Office Boys, 3 to 0 (Hill 523, Colton 203); Medford Millworks defeated M and M, 2 to 1 (Adair 568, Eads 212).

FAILURE TO HIT IN CLUTCH COST CARDINALS SERIES

Southworth Says Team
Couldn't Sook With Men
On—Yankees Are Jubilant

By Vincent Thillan
(United Press Correspondent)

St. Louis, Oct. 12.—(U.P.)—The 1943 World Series has been written into the record books as a New York victory, but today the perplexing question, "what happened to the Cardinals?" starts its way around a hot-stove league which literally has clubs around the globe.

How could the slam-bang Cards, who took four straight from the Yankees last year, once they got under way, fluff out in five games? The Cards, admittedly not strong on pitching, had been heralded as a hitting team.

Cardinal Manager Billy Southworth, completely relaxed for the first time since the series started, pointed out the major reason for the loss when he said his hitting collapsed with men on bases.

"The hitting in this series could be covered with a postage stamp, but with every year there's another series," he said.

Like Joe McCarthy, who has managed the Yankees to seven series victories in eight tries, Southworth said the pitching was exceptional throughout.

"If anyone had told me before the series that I would get pitching like this," Southworth said, "I would have told him 'it was in the bag.'"

"Billy the Kid," whose feud with New York sportswriters developed into the "silent treatment" on both sides, along with the rest of the Cardinals, appeared less down-hearted than was expected after taking the short-end of the player pool.

No Turning Point
McCarthy and his Yankees were jubilant, of course, breaking out of their usual superior attitude long enough to caper like kids. But a few moments of that was enough and they rushed to entrain for those activities a ball player indulges in during the off "season."

While this series had its dramatic moments, such as Mort Cooper's universally popular victory in the second game shortly after his father's death, there was no spectacular turning point upon which the victory hinged. Last year it was the ninth inning in which the Cards tallied four times that set off the hell-for-leather type of play which dismayed the over-confident New Yorkers. This year the series progressed just as the Yankees wanted it—business-like, with orthodox baseball throughout and none of this hurry-scurry stuff.

Ken Groetzema, right end, will captain the team against the Bruins in Los Angeles.

ROCKNE'S GENIUS PAYING DIVIDENDS

Chicago, Oct. 12.—(U.P.)—The imprint of the football genius of the late Knute Rockne on Notre Dame remains indelible today as the Irish roll on toward another national championship. It is a Rockne touch youthful Frank Leahy inherited from the "Old Master" 15 years ago that has paid lucrative dividends and pushed Notre Dame to the top among the nation's undefeated and untied grid combinations.

Leahy made a radical move a season ago when he junked the traditional Rockne offense to install the "T" formation. However, the 35-year-old coach retained "Rock's" unit substitution system for the 1942 campaign, and it is that replacement plan which has contributed heavily to the success of the current Irish outfit.

Football Briefs

Los Angeles, Oct. 12.—(U.P.)—Coach Jeff Cravath scheduled light workouts for the University of Southern California Trojans this week to give the squad time off for final examinations.

Lineup for the University of San Francisco game Saturday will be unchanged except for Ralph Heywood, star end and captain, who withdrew from the team to await a call from the Marines.

Los Angeles, Oct. 12.—(U.P.)—The University of California at Los Angeles Bruins slated defensive practice today as a "warm-up" for the University of California game Saturday.

Coach Babe Horrell concentrated on guard positions with his two regulars, Mike Marien-thal and Bob Rohrer, both doubtful starters because of injuries.

San Francisco, Oct. 12.—(U.P.)—Coach Al Tassi of the University of San Francisco said today he expected the Dons to show "marked improvement" against undefeated Southern California here Saturday.

"Inexperience is our biggest handicap," Tassi declared, "but we'll have a few surprises for the Trojans."

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 12.—(U.P.)—The Golden Bears of California concentrated on aerial defenses today after Scout Walt Gordon reported that UCLA's Bobby Andrews was one of the best passers on the coast.
