

COLUMNIST FINDS EDITING WEEKLY IS NO VACATION

New York Mirror's Ted Friend Reports as Owner of Little Susanville Paper.

By Nick Bourne
(United Press Correspondent)
Susanville, Cal., Oct. 19.—(UP)—Ted Friend, the New York Mirror's Broadway columnist who quit the bright lights to relax in a hammock and run the little weekly newspaper here folded his hammock today.

He hasn't had time to put a bulge in it.

Friend gave up his 12-year-run of Broadway, a well-known by-line and a bow from all the headwaiters when he bought the Lassen Advocate. Today, as he spanked to bed his third weekly eight-page issue, he wanted one thing understood:

Harder Than City
Country editors work harder than city editors.

"I work harder than I ever did in New York," he said. "I have to be all over the place, dig up all my own news, chop my own wood and split my own infinitives."

Ted said at least he'll never get overspecialized like most city newspapermen.

"Not only do I do all the writing," he said, "but I have to chase the ads, drum up circulation and manage the print-shop. It's lucky the ink smells better up here in the high timber."

Reversing the traditional "Local Boy Makes Good in Big City" role, Ted has graduated from writing of celebrities in the Stork club to headlining the doings at the church bazaar.

2,100 Circulation
Susanville is nestled in the Mount Lassen country in the heart of the high Sierra Nevada mountains. Lumber and box-making are the principal businesses. The Advocate—circulation 2,100—is 78 years old. Friend is 45.

His wife, Dorothy, a former New York press agent, probably will pitch in to handle society news later, he said. The people of Susanville seem to like him all right; he has been given the official nod by invitations to the Rotary club and the Methodist Men's club.

"Best climate and the nicest people in the world here," he said. "But don't ever let them tell you that a country editor

Layettes Offered As Bonus For Few Months Knitting

Minneapolis, Oct. 19.—(UP)—The Minneapolis Knitting Works used the shortage of baby garments today to solve the manpower shortage.

In need of women employees to work seated at machines, the company advertised for expectant mothers to work for three-month periods.

"When you leave," the advertisement said, "we will shower you with a baby's layette—three shirts, three bands, two binders, three training pants, and three nighties."

CHURCH COUNCIL OPENS MEETINGS; PUBLIC INVITED

The district Presbytery of the Oregon District Council of the Assemblies of God is convening in Medford this week for the fall business session. Oregon is divided into nine sections with a Presbyter presiding in each section. There are some 250 churches in the state.

While the council is meeting here the local church, located at 11 Newtown street, just off West Main, will be able to enjoy the ministry of some of the leaders.

Superintendent Atwood Foster will speak tonight; H. Ivan Ryan, of Lebanon, will speak Wednesday, and Lester Carlsen, of La Grande, will be heard Thursday. The meetings will convene at 7:45 p. m.

The Rev. H. G. Downey, pastor of the Medford church, has issued a cordial invitation to the public to hear the visiting ministers.

CENTRAL PT. MAN HURT IN SMASHUP

State police reported that a 1936 Ford truck driven by Robert C. Sanderson of Gold Hill went over the bank on the Pacific highway about five miles south of Ashland at 3 a. m. today and that Joseph Edwin Owens of Central Point, a passenger in the machine, suffered a broken right leg below the knee in the accident.

The driver of the truck, which was owned by C. W. Duggan of Sams Valley, was quoted by police as explaining that the steering apparatus "went haywire." The truck was almost completely demolished. Sanderson, police said, was not hurt.

The injured man was taken to Ashland Community hospital.

FRENCH AUTHOR DIES

London, Oct. 19.—(UP)—Radio Berlin, quoting Paris newspapers, has reported the death of Romain Rolland, French author and Nobel prize winner in 1916. Rolland, who held strongly internationalist and pacifist views, reportedly clashed recently with German occupation authorities. He was best known for his novel Jean Christophe.

CAMP ADAIR LAND CHARGES AIRD

Portland, Ore., Oct. 19.—(UP)—The army today prepared to defend itself against charges of gross overpayment for land purchased as part of Oregon's largest military establishment—Camp Adair.

In a report on appraisals of property at the army camp, Harry D. Boivin, special attorney in the lands division of the department of justice, charged that the army has paid or has petitioned the federal court to pay $54,588 for seven parcels of land taken for the camp. This is more than double the amount for which the property was assessed, Boivin asserted.

Boivin is resigning from the department of justice following completion of the present investigation, Federal Judge Claude McCulloch of Portland announced.

Now, in progress at Albany, Ore., near Camp Adair, is a special federal court session called to re-examine 24 land cases condemned by the war department for inclusion in the camp.

TRIO ORDERED TO NAVAL TRAINING

Three Medford youths yesterday received orders to report to the navy for training under the V-12 program by November 1. They are Bill Bauman, Jerry McDougall and Don Lue.

Bauman, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Bauman of 324 S. Ivy St., and a graduate of St. Mary's academy last spring, will go to Willamette university at Salem to study pre-medicine. Both young McDougall and Lue are to report to Colorado State college, Colorado Springs, for officer training with the navy. McDougall is leaving tomorrow and will visit with relatives in San Francisco and the bay area before going on to Colorado.

Both McDougall and Lue were members of the 1943 graduating class of Medford senior high school. The former is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McDougall 418 S. Oakdale Ave., and Lue is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lue, Sunset Park.

Growth of Assemblies of God Termed "Truly Phenomenal"

General Council, With 118 Congregations, 6700 Members in 1916, Now Has 4840 Churches And Nearly 225,000 Members

By R. L. LUNSFORD

ONE of the most phenomenal records of growth among American denominations has been set by the General Council Assemblies of God. With 118 congregations and 6,700 members in 1916, the body has grown in twenty-seven years to 4,840 congregations and approximately 225,000 members. Though one of the youngest, it is gregations are located in each of the forty-eight states, with the possible exception of Vermont.

Prospects for continued rapid growth are revealed in the report that 6,500 Sunday schools are affiliated with the body, exceeding the number of organized congregations by more than 1,500.

Sunday school enrollment is reported at 500,000.

Similarly phenomenal is the denomination's record of having established, in the twenty-nine years of its existence, forty-two foreign mission fields, staffed with 380 missionaries and 1,250 native workers. The sum of $700,000 annually passes through the denomination's department of foreign missions.

Home Missions Localized

While the home missionary program is largely carried on upon a voluntary basis generally under the supervision of the officials of the district in which it is located, the general council is sponsoring a project in the mountains of Kentucky and West Virginia employing eighty missionaries.

The general council maintains one school, Central Bible Institute at Springfield, Mo. However, at least eight other Bible schools are affiliated with the denomination under district or local supervision.

Publishing interests of the denomination are cared for by the

About that time there occurred simultaneously in several parts of the United States, as well as in Canada, South America, India, Norway and the British Isles, remarkable Pentecostal revivals. As the several groups spread and became acquainted with each other, it became apparent to the leaders that a central body was needed to accelerate and conserve their work.

At a meeting of the representatives of the several bodies, called at Hot Springs, Ark., in April, 1914, the general council was formed.

Statistics Reveal Growth

Two years later at the Fourth General Council Meeting in St. Louis, Mo., the statement of fundamental truths, doctrinal statement of the body, was adopted and the complete organization of the general council was effected.

Comparative statistics reveal the phenomenal growth of the group. With 6,700 members in 1916, the body grew to 48,000 in 1926, an increase of 615 per cent.

At the end of the next decade they numbered 148,000, an increase of 208 per cent for the decade.

The remarkable rate of growth continues, the number of members having increased from 148,000 to 225,000 since 1936. Congregation—Presbyterian in polity and Pentecostal in doctrine, the Assemblies of God are pretty effectively demonstrating a refutation to the often-heard arguments that the romance of Christian conquest is about dead, and that no significant gains by churches can be expected any more.

Gospel Publishing House, which publishes the Pentecostal Evangel, official organ of the body. In addition, the publishing house supplies the denomination's Sunday school publication as well as its books and other promotional materials.
