Make every cupful count!

When a Chinese man or a Chinese woman buys kerosene for the household, the amount he ordinarily carries home would fill his teacup—no more. A Chinese teacup holds maybe half as much as an American teacup. To an American, such a dribble seems scarcely enough to throw away.

But there are around 485 million Chinese. Multiplied by the number of customers, multiplied again for each time they buy, these tiny Chinese teacups add up in a year to many million gallons!

More important, these "scraps" of kerosene cook food, give light, make indispensable tea, and warm the fingers of all China. They bring to 485 million people many of the things they consider best and most essential in life.

If you force your motor on a chill morning, if you make a few jack-rabbit starts in traffic, please don't think of it as a scanty cup of gasoline wasted. Multiply, Chinese-fashion, by the 20 million total of American motorists.

If you're tempted to make an unnecessary trip—just a couple of miles, perhaps, multiply Chinese-fashion by 20 million and you have the gasoline for one more crushing raid by Fortresses over Berlin or Rabaul. Remember always there are 20 million you-s.

The need increases daily for every drop of gasoline. It's especially needed to make certain that weight of bombing which promises the kind of victory that will cost the fewest American lives.

That sort of victory is the most essential thing in life right now. And cupfuls of gasoline may make the difference. So let's learn from the Chinese, our friends and allies. Let's make every cupful count!

LANDON SAYS GOP WOULD COOPERATE IN FOREIGN POLICY

Ready to Meet Demos Half Way in Writing Planks For Campaign Platform

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 14.—(U.P.) Alf M. Landon, 1936 GOP presidential nominee, said last night that the Republican party is ready to meet the Democrats halfway in writing identical foreign policy planks into their 1944 campaign platform.

But, he told the Wisconsin Republican committee meeting, the GOP must be informed of international achievements and pledges and obtain a guarantee from the Democratic party that the plank will not be altered.

Talked With Hull

Landon said he discussed such a possibility with Sec. of State Cordell Hull on a recent trip to Washington. He outlined three prerequisites which he said he informed Hull must be met before the GOP would agree to abandon politics "at the water's edge."

These were: "First, before the Republican leadership could write or agree to a plank they would have to have a full and detailed report on what has taken place at these conferences (Moscow, Cairo and Tehran) and all the background and the implications of any agreements or understandings that have been arrived at, either orally or in writing."

"Second, there would have to be an agreement between the two parties as to the exact wording of the plank—agreement as to every word and every comma. And equally important there would have to be an agreement as to just what the words mean—and they must mean exactly the same thing to both parties."

For Firm Commitment

"Third, having agreed to such wording and its meaning, if the Republican convention adopted the plan, there would have to be a firm commitment—a commitment the keeping of which would not be open to question—that the Democratic party in its convention would adopt the exact same plank, without so much as the change of a word," Landon said. Landon said the public had the right to ask, for its own information, the details of agreements reached at international conferences without being charged with being anti-British or anti-Russian.

"The American people are not anti-British or anti-Russian. They are simply pro-American and they are pro-world peace. It is a tragic state of affairs when a pro-American point of view becomes at once anti-something else," he said.

Prospect

Prospect, Dec. 14.—Date for the Prospect home extension unit Christmas party is Wednesday, Dec. 15, instead of Dec. 16 as previously announced in this column.

Mrs. Christoph Hagen sustained a broken right forearm when she fell on the frozen ground near her home, Friday. Mrs. Hagen spent the first night after her injury in the Community hospital in Medford. Saturday, she went to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Arvill Carter, on Berrydale Avenue, to stay a few days.

U.A.L. To Have Super-Liners After War

Some conception of air passenger operations as they will look at major air terminals when peace comes again is given in this photograph of the Douglas DC-4, typical of the type of super-liner planned by United Air Lines for post-war operations. The DC-4, already in mass production as the military C-54 and tested as such in world-wide operations, will cruise at 220 miles an hour with 50 passengers, mail and express. Estimates are that it will fly from New York to Chicago in around 3 1/2 hours; from Los Angeles to Seattle via Medford, in six hours, and will clip approximately six hours off existing coast-to-coast schedules.

Wendell Vaughn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Vaughn of the Laurelhurst district spent the week-end with friends at Prospect. Wendell has been stationed at the Farragut Naval Training station for the past two months, but, on account of color blindness, has been transferred to the Seabees. He will have a month at home before going into active duty in the latter branch of the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goode and little daughter, Patricia Ann, shopped and visited friends at Klamath Falls over the week end.

T. Sgt. Harry Heidenreich of Camp White was a house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Jantzer Saturday and Sunday, and also visited other friends at Jantzer Village. T. Sgt. Heidenreich returned to Camp White last week from Camp Santa Anita, near Los Angeles, where he attended ordinance school for two months. Mr. and Mrs. James H. Grieve attended to business matters in Medford, Friday. Mrs. Floyd Kelley substituted for Mrs. Grieve at the Prospect post office, for the day.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Lantzer returned Dec. 13 from Klamath Falls, where they had attended business matters for the past three days.

Herbert Beckelhymer of Los Angeles, attended to business matters here last week, and attended the funeral of his father, Edmund P. Beckelhymer, of Union Creek, Saturday, at Medford. The deceased was well known here, as he owned and operated Beckie's Cafe at Union Creek, 11 miles north of Prospect, for several years.

The high school student body offers something new in the way of entertainment Friday night, Dec. 17. It will be called "Prospect Night Club," and there will be vocal and instrumental music skits, also food will be sold, and dancing will be enjoyed by the public. Proceeds will go to the Red Cross. This entertainment will be in the school gymnasium.

The movies sponsored by the high school student body, are now being shown on Thursday and Friday nights, every other week.

TALENT MARINE WINS STRIPES OF CORPORAL

Talent, Dec. 14.—Corporal Earl Jones of Talent, Ore., has completed a course of instruction in the Marine Corps Radio Operators' school at San Diego, winning promotion to his present rank for outstanding ability shown during the course.

He is now ready for assignment to the communications section of a combat unit, according to a news release from the San Diego station.

ACTRESS IS WITNESS IN TRIAL FOR MURDER

Hollywood, Dec. 14.—(U.P.) — Gracie Fields' gardener blacked her pretty secretary's eye in jealousy several months before he shot her to death and then tried to kill himself, the British comedienne told a jury trying Gaetano Falciani for murder. They both left her employ soon after the eye-blackening incident in June, Miss Fields said.

Falciani was found Aug. 12 with a bullet in his head beside the nude body of the secretary, Violet Van Someren.
