ARMY AIR MEDAL IS AWARDED LATE LIEUT. DON FIELD

An army Air Medal was awarded posthumously to Lt. Don Field, Medford fighter pilot who perished in the North African campaign during a battle April 5, 1943, last night. Presentation of the medal was made to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Field, by Capt. O. M. Smith of the Medford airbase at the Field home, 610 South Oakdale, with only members of the family present for the ceremony.

The citation made with the award, received from Brig. Gen. Edward F. Witsell, reads: "For meritorious achievement while participating in aerial flight during the period of Feb. 14, 1943, to April 5, 1943. Due to his extraordinary skill as a navigator, Lt. Field participated as formation leader on two occasions on the long water non-stop flight from England to North Africa, before being assigned to an operational squadron. On his second combat mission, April 5, 1943, Lt. Field participated with his squadron in a fierce battle with enemy aircraft over the From this engagement, during which his squadron destroyed 18 enemy aircraft, Lt. Field is missing. By his skill as a navigator and courage and coolness as a pilot, Lt. Field has reflected great credit upon himself and upon the armed forces of the United States."

Lt. Field's Purple Heart medal had previously been sent to his parents, accompanied by a letter of sympathy from Henry L. Stimson, then secretary of war. Additional information received by the Fields concerning the last flight of their son is to the effect that in addition to the 18 aircraft referred to in the citation, which were German troop transports, the American airmen destroyed 13 fighter planes during the same battle. Army heads later referred to this air engagement as one of the crucial air battles of the North African campaign. Lt. Field's plane, a P-38, was reported to have been downed 20 miles off shore over the Mediterranean sea.

Lt. Field graduated from Medford senior high school, took air cadet training at the Southern Oregon College of Education and was a student at Oregon State college when he went into the air corps.

Only Meaning For D-Day Is Trouble For Axis Powers

What is D-Day?
Although it has been interpreted to mean Day of Destiny, Day of Destruction, Day-Day, Day of Deliverance, and others, the D merely is a symbol selected by military leaders for the day of invasion.
To military men, the use of the term "D-Day" is a convenient way for them to designate specific troops and supplies for a planned operation. It is the designated day for action without revealing to the enemy the all important actual time for launching the attack.

BLISTER CONTROL CREWS SENT OUT

A crew of 16 and 17-year-old youths recruited in Portland, Seattle and other sections of the northwest left Medford today to work in the blister rust control project of the Rogue River forest service. Forty-three were sent out in the first group and additional groups scheduled for Wednesday and Friday will bring the total crew up to 100.
The blister rust control camp will be set up in the Union Creek area and will have Charles King as foreman. It was said that the crews are recruited in other sections of the northwest in order not to deplete the local labor supply.
Control crews for the blister rust, disease which attacks white pine forests, are used each summer on the Rogue River forest.
