

For "action BEYOND THE CALL OF DUTY"

The Distinguished Service medal . . . won on X Battlefield for "action beyond the call of duty" . . . which means a soldier didn't just do his job—he did a little more than that—a little more that might have cost his life or meant a permanent disability. Every day hundreds of American fighting men are doing more than their job . . . facing more hazards than are required of them that this world may know a speedier victory and enjoy an early peace.

Would you as a civilian be entitled to a medal for "action beyond the call of duty?" Can you honestly say, "I am doing more than my job here on the home front!" Living according to war-time standards and necessities, putting 10% of your earnings into War Bonds is "doing your job" . . . but buying those EXTRA $100 War Bonds in this War Loan constitutes that "something more" that will bring victory closer. Match the efforts of our valiant soldiers—buy not just one extra bond . . . but make a worth-while sacrifice . . . buy more than your share this time.
