THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Yes, I'm afraid there's no denyin' it, Judge... jeeps and trucks and other kinds of motorized equipment have taken the place of the good old horse in modern warfare."

"It's true of lots of things in this war, Eben. Every day we hear of new tactics and requirements and new uses of products. For instance, take the alcohol that is used for war purposes. In World War I, this vitally needed product was used mostly in making smokeless powder, chemical warfare materials and medical supplies. Today it must do far more... it must provide the base for such indispensable products as synthetic rubber, shatterproof glass, lacquers, plastics and many other of our requirements so essential to victory."

"As a result hundreds of millions of gallons are required every year... half of which is being produced by the beverage distilling industry. Bet you didn't know that, Eben."

"As a matter of fact, I didn't, Judge. That's a mighty important war contribution that had escaped me completely."

VOTER REGISTRY IN RECENT SPURT

There has been a spurt this week in registration of voters for the November election, the county clerk's office reports. A rush of belated voters is expected in the next two weeks. On the final day, Saturday, October 7, the county clerk's offices will be kept open until 8 p. m. County offices usually close at 1 p. m. on Saturdays.

Registration is fairly heavy, mostly by regular residents, who have not voted in the last two years or have moved to another precinct. Under Oregon law no voters are sworn in on election day and in order to vote a citizen must be registered. Six months residence in the state is the only qualification, aside from citizenship and legal majority.

PAULINE BETZ IS MONTH'S ATHLETE

Los Angeles, Sept. 22—(U.P.)—Comely Pauline Betz, who joined such Titans as Helen Wills Moody, Alice Marble and Helen Jacobs in California's tennis hall of fame when she topped her third straight National Women's championship early this month, today was named southern California athlete of the month by the Helms Athletic Foundation.

The red-haired Los Angeles girl, currently defending her southwest crown at the Los Angeles Tennis club, has come a long way since 1939 when, at the age of 15, she ranked No. 8 nationally.

News Behind The News By Paul Mallon

Washington, Sept. 22—The official stories say there will be another bumper crop this year, but some of the private experts suggest it will turn out to be much less than last year as a whole. Decreases will come in soy beans, flax corn, peanuts, hay, oats and barley. Economic Stabilization or Byrnes is asking $2,000,000,000 to handle the officially predicted surpluses, but the housewife knows there are obvious further shortages in butter and cheese, and rationing is still going on.

Vermont's Senator Aiken is promoting a restoration of the food stamp plan to dole out the supposed surpluses, but there are no needy to justify such a dole.

Reports from official quarters suggest the army is overstocked in Europe, and certainly it is true that the job of feeding northern Europe will be less than we expected. Conditions in Germany as well as in France seem less drastic on that score than we anticipated.

But there are no official figures to show how much overstocking the defense services have done, or in what lines. Toss all these together and other similar news evidences of the food situation into the air and you will find very little solid fact floating to the ground.

ABOUT the only visible fact is that this is an election year and the administration is worried about the polls showing Dewey leading in the farm regions.

Gross panaceas to aid the farmer naturally are in order, and it may be necessary to wait until after the election to get any clear-cut, absolute picture of the situation. Even so, there seems to be confusion among the managers here of our managed economy some of whom are political, the stories of surpluses sound good to consumers and processors, but make the farmer shaky.

Some of the outsiders (Dewey sympathizers, no doubt) suspect the planners of over-emphasizing surplus prospects in all of official bulletins to restore complete postwar acreage control to Washington. The old AAA crowd has not lost its desire for regimentation, even though war necessities have forced an opposite policy to promote utmost production—and these are the boys who make the official statistics. No doubt they would like to get the farm situation back in their laps, where they had it.

The food-stamp plan on the other hand will certainly be killed by congress. It will, no doubt, get out of the full agriculture committee to the floor. But the senate is not likely to approve, and even if it does the house will not. The measure clearly lacks urgency, as well as justification.

The Bankhead idea for government purchase of the full cotton crop (which along with wheat is good) has better justification but is running into questions as to where the government could store it and keep it at what cost and in what condition for protection against deterioration.

No doubt the government would further like to take more food off the rationing list before election. But the inner condition of various lines does not encourage such action—a pretty fair indication that surpluses at the moment are hard to find.

tomato juices recently was officially attributed to "increased army demand." But this action also enables continuance of mechanics of the rationing system by taking in the blue points, earlier lifted from vegetables and a few other items.

Yet the vegetable canning outlook for winter is not up. Furthermore, sugar allotments for home canning did not do the job of promoting the usual amount of that home-food supply for the winter. Home canning is definitely down.

So anyone who likes clarity and assured facts will save the trouble of looking behind the food news until after November 7. All I find there now is politics.
