MORSE STRESSES NEED FOR UNITY IN RALLY SPEECH

GOP Candidate For Senator Climaxes Busy Day; To Klamath Falls Today.

Stressing the need for all groups in America to work together towards a common goal and declaring that it was the duty of a United States senator to represent all the people in his state, regardless of economic class lines, Wayne Morse, Republican candidate for the senate in the coming general election, addressed a party rally at Republican headquarters last night. The candidate lauded the record of local lumbermen and their employees and said that the fact that there has not been a single strike in the lumber mills of this area during the war proves that labor and industry can work together. His enthusiastic audience at the rally asked many questions following Morse's speech.

Morse's talk climaxed a day of meetings with Medford and Ashland residents. This morning he went to Klamath Falls for a series of speaking engagements and from there will go to Lakeview Saturday.

Decries Class Friction
"I believe that the future of all Americans lies in the success and prosperity of all Americans," he declared at the rally here. "There must be no pitting of class against class or economic group against economic group. There are those who believe that our representatives in congress must represent some particular economic group or class. To this view I strongly dissent. I firmly hold that it is the duty of a United States senator to represent all the people in his state, regardless of economic class lines. In my judgment this is the keystone of our form of government, this single interest of all of our people in the good of all of our people."

Morse pointed out that because of his view that as a senator he would be called upon to represent all groups and classes in the best interest of the general public he had refused financial assistance from labor unions and employers' associations during this campaign and the primary campaign, because "it seemed to me that if I accepted a contribution from an economic bloc or group, as such, that the contributors could not help but feel that I was in some way indebted to them as a special group. I have been given the support of businessmen and labor, not because they think that I will give them special favors, but because they know from my record I will give them a square deal. No real American expects more from his senator than that which will best benefit the entire nation."

Lumbermen Lauded
Stressing the need for all groups in America to work together towards the common goal of peace, prosperity and security Morse pointed to the record of local lumbermen and their employees. He noted that there has not been a single strike in the lumber mills of this area during the war. "This great record," said Mr. Morse, "is adequate adequate proof that labor and industry can work together towards the same goal." The people of Jackson county are to be congratulated upon this real contribution, not only to the war effort, but to the future security of the nation."

Candidate Morse spoke out against the trend towards concentrated power in the executive branch of government and away from the checks and balance system of a true representative form of government. The basic issue of the campaign, according to Morse, is whether we are going to end the trend towards executive government or whether we are going to let representative government slip out of our hands.

His New Deal Theory
"The New Deal's theory of government will, if continued," said Morse, "result in the federalization and executive domination of the entire economic life of this country. When we arrive at the stage where appointed government officials are issuing regulations which amount to law, administering those regulations and judging and sentencing violators of those regulations, we are well along the road to executive tyranny. It does not matter that the administrators are able, honest and conscientious men, they were not elected by the people to make laws, and there is no assurance that the views of these appointed law-makers are those of the majority of the public.

"We must not let this trend continue if we expect to keep our form of government. I do not believe that you can separate economic democracy from political democracy and expect the latter to long survive. When laws are made by persons other than those elected by the people for that purpose, democracy is gone. That will be the substitution of government by men for government by law.

"I strongly favor immediately at the close of the war the elimination of all unnecessary government controls which at the present time make it so difficult for the private enterprise system to work. The existing bureaucratic program of directing by administrative order the affairs of farmers, labor and businessmen is bound to have a discouraging effect upon full employment after the war, because people will not want to run the risk of investing their savings in new enterprise if they have to operate under so much governmental red tape."

Morse recalled that he had publicly criticized the shipment of scrap to Japan in 1938 and again in 1940. "We must never again be guilty of selling a war machine to a potential aggressor nation."

GOP FORECASTER SAYS DEWEY "IN"

Portland, Ind., Oct. 6.—(U.P.)—Jerry A. Mathews, editor of the Young Republican national Republican weekly and veteran election forecaster, today predicted that Thomas Dewey would be elected president with a minimum of 298 electoral votes and possibly more than 300.

Dewey will carry New York with a "tremendous up-state majority" and all the New England states with the possible exception of Rhode Island, Mathews said.

The GOP standard bearer will carry Pennsylvania "easily" and also Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, North Dakota, South Dakota, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Idaho, Oregon, and possibly New Mexico, he added.

Dewey has "an excellent chance" of carrying the border states of Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri and Oklahoma. "I am not giving him any of the southern states, but there may be some surprises in that region," Mathews said.

SATURDAY DEADLINE FOR VOTER REGISTRY

Citizens who have not registered for the presidential election Tuesday, Nov. 7, have their final chance Saturday. To accommodate the late comers the county clerk's office which usually closes at noon, will be kept open until eight o'clock in the evening.

Tabulation of the registered vote by party and precinct will start next Monday. It will take the better part of a week to complete the work. Cursory surveys show the republicans have a large majority. There has been an increase in democratic registration the past week.

CENTRAL PT. PILOT KILLED IN CRASH OF FIGHTER PLANE

Keith R. Shull, 21, 2nd Lt., Air Corps, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Shull, Central Point, was killed last Monday in the East when his fighter plane crashed. His parents were notified of the accident on Monday but the body was not found until Thursday.

He was born in Garibaldi, Oregon, Feb. 29, 1923, and enlisted in the air corps in Aug. 1941, while living in Butte Falls. He was first sent to Ft. Douglas, Utah, then to Jefferson Barracks, Mo., and on Dec. 25, 1941, graduated from school in Denver, Colo., as a member of the ground force. From there he went to Payne Field and then to Alaska for six months where he became a tail gunner in a B26. He returned to the States and took officers training at Sherman, Texas, graduating on Jan. 7, 1944. He was in the first group to ferry fighter planes across the Atlantic. He had ferried fighter planes to almost every part of the world. He was home on furlough last May.

Besides his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Shull, he leaves a brother and sister, Joan and Larry at home, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Shull, Peshastin, Wn., and Mrs. Daisy Scribner, Spokane, Wn. Time of the services will be announced upon the arrival of the remains. Arrangements are in care of the Conger-Morris Chapel.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"It sounds almost like a miracle, Judge... how did we ever do it?"

"American industry did it, Sally. When the Japs conquered the chief natural rubber producing centers of the world they thought they had dealt a death blow to our war effort. But, in less than two years, we are producing enough synthetic rubber in this country to supply all our military and essential civilian requirements.

"Our rubber experts knew how to make it but the most practical process at the time required huge amounts of industrial alcohol... far beyond the already overtaxed capacity of our industrial alcohol plants. So, overnight, our country's beverage distillers stopped making whiskey and produced hundreds of millions of gallons of the vitally needed alcohol.

"As a matter of fact, Sally, a high government official said recently... synthetic rubber is from 6 to 9 months ahead of where it could have been if alcohol had not been available for butadiene production."

"We were really fortunate, weren't we Judge, to have a beverage distilling industry in existence... able to help perform this great wartime miracle!"
