Mayor Meeker Urges Cooperation Marking Business Women's Week

To the Citizens of Medford:

By virtue of my office, I hereby proclaim, the week of October 8 to 14, 1944 National Business Women's Week. I urge the citizens of our town to cooperate with the Business and Professional Women's Club of Medford in observing this week.

"Are We Part-Time Citizens?" is the challenging theme of the week. It is a question that every citizen should ask himself. Dynamic citizenship requires work every working day of the year. A once-in-four-years-citizen is not much good to himself or anyone else, for he has failed to observe that cardinal principle of citizenship, "Be ye alert in exercising your civic duty every day in the year."

How can a citizen be alert? The answer is plain, by knowing the men and women nominated for office, by watching the government charged with local, state and federal administration, by reading reports, attending public hearings of the board of education, finance committee, health board, etc. And by registering and voting, of course.

The Business and Professional Women's Clubs have undertaken the task of making our responsibilities clear to us. May public interest be their reward.

C. A. MEEKER
Mayor, City of Medford

FM Development On Big Scale Is Outlook in Radio

Washington, Oct. 7.—(U.P.)—ast new possibilities in the world of radio were on the horizon today with the release by Paul W. Kesten, Columbia Broadcasting syste mvice president, of a proposal for ten radio networks linking 4,000 to 5,000 new radio stations throughout the country.

Appearing at a federal communications commission hearing yesterday, Kesten explained that these stations would use the frequency modulation method of broadcasting which cuts out interference and permits greater fidelity of tone than is possible at present.

Large cities might have as many as 25 or 30 stations, he said. There are now about 50 FM stations operating in the country. Special FM receivers are required for listeners to FM stations.

YANK ARTILLERY POUNDS BOLOGNA IN DRIVING RAIN

Rome, Oct. 7—(U.P.)—Heavy American artillery today lobbed shells over the foothills of the northern Apennines into the outskirts of Bologna from positions approximately 12 miles south of the city while infantry and tank units crept forward in a driving rainstorm to a point two miles north of Loiano.

United Press War Correspondent James E. Roper reported from the fifth army front that an average of six out of 15 huge shells, which he described as weighing "more than a man," were landing in the prescribed target area, despite the extremely long range and the heavy overcast which prevented accurate observation.

The big guns, literally dragged and skidded into position along mountain trails deep with mud, also shelled the main Rimini-Bologna highway and positions east and west of the Po Valley city.

Infantry forces and south African armored units fought in snow, rain and mud against heavy German resistance to reach a point within 12 miles of Bologna. Americans pushed two miles to the west. Leading elements were reported to have reached a point just south of the village of San Niccolo, northwest of Monzuno.

South Africans captured Mount Vigese, 3,500-foot peak 22 miles southwest of Bologna, dominating a long stretch of highway 64, secondary Florence-Bologna highway.

Fifth army forces were faced by eight German divisions, headquarters spokesmen said.

Civilian employment in war agencies—the war and navy departments and the emergency war agencies—accounted for 71 per cent of the total of 2,800,000 federal employees in continental United States in March, 1944.
