

MOTHERS SHOULD WARN DAUGHTERS AGAINST PICK-UP

Encouraging of Casual Male May Lead to Rape or Death, Says Medic.

By Dorothy Williams
United Press Correspondent
Washington, Oct. 13.—(U.P.)—A woman physician, who has counseled thousands of government girls, declared today that mothers should make it clear to their daughters that they are only "begging for trouble when they kiss" or otherwise encourage casual male acquaintances.

The physician, who asked that her name be withheld, made her recommendation in endorsing the contention of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt that parents should give teen age daughters "a little more real knowledge"—or keep them at home.

Snood Slaying Cited

Their remarks were occasioned by Washington's "snood slaying," the rape-murder last week of 18-year-old Dorothy Berrum, who came here from Chippewa Falls, Wis., to take a job as a War Department typist-clerk. Held in the case is Earl McFarland, 21-year-old marine, who reportedly "picked up" the victim on a downtown street corner.

"Parents should advise their daughters of the reasons for the 'don'ts' they preach," the physician said. "They should see that their daughters receive an adequate sex education either from them or some competent person."

"Mothers don't make their daughters realize, for instance, that the sexual urge doesn't stop with kissing," she said. "They don't give them a scientific explanation of the part sex plays in all life."

By permitting a man to pick her up, a girl is encouraging him to believe she would not resist further attention, the physician continued. And when she goes with him to some secluded place, she added, she is obviously encouraging him further.

"A man who commits such a crime as this is, of course, a psychopathic personality, but the girls should be warned that there are such persons in the world," the physician said.

Major Edward J. Kelly, Washington police superintendent, also warned against "pick-ups."

"We can not take care of women if they won't use good sense and take care of themselves," he said.

"We do everything in our power to make the city safe for women and we have kept our crime record low, but we can not assign a policewoman to protect every girl in Washington."

Both the physician and Kelly took issue with the charge of Ray H. Everett, executive secretary of the social hygiene society, that the government is falling down in its job of caring for girl employees.

"The government provides a multitude of social outlets for its girl workers," the physician said. "There are carefully organized dances, hikes, state parties and all sorts of athletic and educational groups. Every agency has someone a girl can talk to if she is ill or unhappy."

Last Tribute to Wilkie

GUN THREAT BY VFW WILL HOLD GOLD HILL MAN BRINGS ARREST

Kenneth C. Julian, of Gold Hill is being held in the county jail on a charge of aiming a loaded pistol at another. He was arrested by state police Thursday night after threatening to shoot Glen Kincaid, Gold Hill resident, and firing the .32 Colt pistol into the ground.

Julian, an ex-sailor, is employed at a service station owned by his wife's uncle, where the incident occurred. Julian has been in the navy for three years and was recently discharged and since then has talked of wanting to go in the merchant marine, it was stated. An argument ensued when Kincaid, according to the district attorney, would not take Julian to the stage depot to board a bus.

Julian got the pistol and threatened Kincaid firing the gun several times.

He was brought to Medford and is being held for further questioning and investigation. Local authorities are planning to confer with the navy department it was stated today.
