Girl Scouting Fun For Adults Leader Declares

Adult volunteer workers who serve as troop leaders, committee members and consultants for Girl Scouting get as much fun and benefit out of their Scout work as the girls themselves, according to Miss Mary Stevenson of the Girl Scout national staff, recently in Medford in her official capacity as field advisor. Miss Stevenson met with Mrs. R. H. Hamblin, executive secretary, and with the Medford Girl Scout Council, to assist in formulating plans for the coming season.

"Women become interested in Girl Scouting as a service to the girls, and then discover that they've done themselves a good turn, too. They develop new interests, hobbies and friends and association with the younger generation rejuvenates their own spirits and point of view," Miss Stevenson said.

She described one leader whose Girl Scout training course in folk songs and song leading had started her on the absorbing and rewarding hobby of collecting work songs and sectional music of our country. Another volunteer leader, who learned the Girl Scout outdoor cooking techniques to teach to her troop, found that she had acquired a skill which was a great social asset.

The greatest satisfaction of all, according to Miss Stevenson is helping girls realize that they, too, can have a part in the important events of our time. Thousands of Girl Scouts are taking part in the war effort, by collecting salvage, working for or in hospitals, making scrapbooks for convalescent soldiers, aiding at blood donor centers, learning how to raise and preserve foods, carrying on other important and useful wartime services.

The girls themselves have found in Scouting an answer to their desire to be of service to their country, according to Miss Stevenson. Membership in the Girl Scouts has increased more than 57 per cent since Pearl Harbor, and there are 1,006,644 girls taking part in the program. Many more would join if room could be found for them in the already over-crowded troops.

"More leaders and adult volunteers is the answer," Miss Stevenson said. "Even though there are nearly 200,000 women—and men, too—enlisted in Girl Scouting, twice as many could be used. Any woman who can give an hour or two a week, or a month, to the girls of her community will find a job for herself in Girl Scouting, and one which will repay her a thousandfold in the kind of satisfaction which no money can buy."

Medford Family Leaves Saturday For Myrtle Point

Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Allen and family, 1066 East Jackson street, left Saturday for Myrtle Point where Mr. Allen will be resident manager for the Union Oil company. Mr. Allen has been connected with the Union Oil office here for some time and Mrs. Allen has recently been a member of the news staff of the Mail Tribune.

Glue Process May Aid Wood Usage In Post-War Industry

Washington—(U.P.)—A wartime development in wood lamination, which solved a major problem of ship construction, may revolutionize structural construction in peacetime industry, the war production board disclosed.

WPB said engineers are studying the technique of glue laminated timbers, perfected to meet the wartime scarcity of large timber, for post-war structural use which may be utilized for bridge arches, mine shafts or "skips," building supports, and other construction materials where tensile and compressive strength is needed.

Officials said that tests are under way to improve glue and manufacturing processes and to determine how low quality of wood can be used successfully for lamination.

Glue lamination of timber was perfected, according to WPB, at the Louisville, Ky., lumber plant of Gamble Brothers, Inc. The process was developed through joint efforts of industry and the navy's bureau of ships.

PIGGIES EAT ON THE TOWN
Indianapolis, Ind. (U.P.)—"This little piggie will go to market and this one will, too, if the owner doesn't hurry up and claim them," Humane Officer Wilford J. Goss said. The two porkers, which he picked up after they had been wandering around in the street for several days, were costing him too much to feed—so the owner will have to pay all of Goss' feeding expenses, he added.
