WAC WRITES OF DESTRUCTION AT CITY OF CASSINO

George W. Swinney, Eagle Point, recently received a letter from a WAC, member of the Signal Section, stationed somewhere in Italy. She has been overseas for more than 14 months, ten months of which were served in Africa. She writes of the hardships encountered by her unit but states they have nothing to complain about compared to the boys at the front. The letter follows:

Dear George:

"I only wish that those who complain of inconveniences at home could see Cassino—utter destruction of a whole town. Nothing left but ruins and most of those only a pile of rubble. But the people are back! Nothing was left, but it is still their home so they returned.

"They camp there under the ruins or beside them despite mines and booby traps and despite the drenching downpours and the mud. What they eat or how they live, I don't know.

"There is a stillness of death over Cassino—not the peaceful silence of Pompei, but a brooding ghostly silence that envelops the place like a shroud, and yet it must have been a pretty town—it was nestled against the hill in a tiny green valley with the monastery above it, but now it is a shattered corpse.

"Its not a pleasant place, with lonely graves of Germans or Italians and sometimes English scattered here and there along the road (the Americans have been removed to one of our cemeteries) and the twisted and discarded equipment lining the roads—not pleasant at all—but, there are people in America who should see it and feel its ghostly silence and feel the death that still lurks there overhanging all.

"They should see the foxholes filled with scum and slime and the rotting gun emplacements. They might then understand that war means death in one of its most horrible forms.

"They should look at the stumps of trees with their limbs and foliage completely stripped by gunfire and shrapnel and they might realize what it was to have fire so thick that no shrubs remain and trees were thus shredded.

"Unfortunately, the papers and films tend to glamorize war—some civilians should visit our hospitals and see our casualties!

"There is nothing glorious about war—it is all horror and hate—but too many people at home close their eyes to that.

"We in the rear echelons are in very little, if any, danger, while we may have to do without a few things and are a trifle inconvenienced in a few others, we are really very well off and have no cause to complain.

"It is different with the men at the front. Besides the grave danger always facing them, they must live in the open where they are subject to drenching rain and cold winds, they are always soaked and it often freezes at night.

"Our rations call for six packs of cigarettes a week (since I do not smoke I send mine to my cousin at the front) and the boys at the front are lucky if they get three packs. We eat C and K rations but ours are served hot and are usually camouflaged with any fresh vegetables we may be able to get. They at the front eat theirs plain and cold from the can. No, I can't complain at all about what we have."

FOOD CROP GOALS HIGHER THAN 1944 TO BE ADVOCATED

Washington, Nov. 3—(U.P.)—The war food administration is expected to recommend to the states sometime this month 1945 food and fiber crop goals totaling 363,000,000 acres, or 4,000,000 more than the acreage planted this year.

The overall goal for 1944 was set at 371,000,000 acres. While formers have fallen slightly short of this mark, production nevertheless is expected to exceed any previous year.

WFA will ask farmers to continue "all out" food production again in 1945 because, despite the expected end of the European war, military demands will continue at high levels, some food will be needed for relief feeding and war-padded civilian pocketbooks will purchase more food than was available this year.

Need Sugar Beets

Greatest recommended increase will be for sugar beets. Farmers will be asked to boost this year's 846,000 acres by 50 per cent. The largest cut will be a 40 per cent slash in dry pea acreage, already announced.

Corn acreage for 1945 has been the subject of considerable controversy, but WFA probably will recommend the same as this year's 99,000,000 acres.

Wheat acreage already has been announced at 2,000,000 acres above 1944, and rye acreage also has been increased somewhat. WFA expects to ask a slight reduction for grain sorghums, but to suggest that oats and barley plantings remain at the same level as this year.

Wife, 16, Sues to Divorce Mate, 44

Los Angeles, Nov. 3—(U.P.)—Geneva Huston, 16-year-old child mother, today sued Arba Hutson, 44, for divorce despite, she said, his threat to put her in a reform school.

The girl said that during her two years of marriage, Huston had doled out 5 and 10 cents at a time and deprived her of decent food.

They have a month-old daughter.
