MEDFORD WOMAN TO LAST REWARD

Augusta Louise Haberbeck passed away Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. E. Stamm, on West Main street, following a lingering illness. Mrs. Haberbeck was born in Germany July 31, 1872, and came to the United States at the age of 21.

On January 24, 1902, she was married to Albert Haberbeck at Butte, Mont. Mrs. Haberbeck leaves to mourn her passing four daughters, Gabriella Haberbeck of Ashland; Mrs. Margaret Stamm of Medford; Mrs. Hildegard Hughes and Mrs. Ruth Copke, both of Grants Pass, Ore. She is also survived by a sister, Mrs. Mary Karnuth of Chicago, Ill., and three grandchildren. Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 5 p. m. at the Perl funeral home. The Rev. Karl Brackhaus of the Zion Lutheran church will officiate. The remains will be then forwarded to Butte for burial.

Medford Visitor Enjoying Furlough From Reich Raids

Sgt. Richard Seymour of Centralia, Wash., who has just returned to the United States after 27 combat missions over Germany as a B-24 tail gunner, visited in Medford last week with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rucker, 423 Plum street. Sgt. Seymour holds the distinguished flying cross, the air medal and three oak leaf clusters. In an interview in Centralia shortly after returning home Sgt. Seymour told of flying over "Flak Happy Valley" or the Rhine valley, which the flyers renamed because "the Germans threw everything at us that they had." Sgt. Seymour was en route to a reassignment center in California.

Fatalities and disablements due to industrial accidents since Pearl Harbor amounted to 60 times the military wounded and missing, according to the War Production Board.

JETS INDICATE SPEED IN MOCK AERIAL ATTACK

Propellorless Comet Fighters Noiseless Until Well Past Objectives

By Don Caswell (UP Staff Correspondent) Modoc Dry Lake, Calif., Nov. 13 (U.P.)—Suddenly a silver streak flashed under the waist gun window which I was manning. "Jets!" shouted voices on the intercom, and the men on our training flight became doubly alert.

A moment later they were back again. Jets. They were high above us at "three o'clock," out of range, but slowed now to our speed. Then, in a flash they burred down and across our formation, turned and came at us in twos and fours, attacking head-on, literally running rings around the slow bombers.

A few minutes before, in a briefing session on the ground, Capt. Thomas Esmond had told our crowd of 200 Liberator crewmen that "part of the interception will be by jets."

Five Hour Mission We had taken off at dawn on a five-hour training mission over southern California, anxious to see these new jet-propelled P-59 Airo-Comet fighters.

We saw them—at times. Navy Corsair fighters first jumped our 18 lumbering Liberators over the Mojave desert. Our gunners quickly spotted them and "tracked" them as they darted in to attack.

Then the silver flashes came, exhaling double smoke trails. There was something about them that suggested metal swallows in flight. The Corsairs had come at us with their huge "meat chopper" propellers beating the air. They were terrifying. The propellorless jets flashed in and out of range noiselessly. You don't hear a thing until they are well past you.

Jets Fast Our bomber formation cruised out to sea for the benefit of navigators taking celestial training, then we flew back to the Muroc army airfield.

As we landed, the Aircomet and the new P-63 Kingcobras strafed the field. The P-63 is no milk wagon for speed, but the Aircomet smoked past and seemed to run and hide from them. The jets streaked over the field at 30 feet with a whistling "whoosh."

Resembles Mustang The Aircomet roughly resembles a mustang in silhouette, with square wingtips and a slimmer fuselage. Under the wing, close to the fuselage, are two blister-shaped nacelles that replace the propeller.

They fly without vibration, reducing pilot fatigue, and they are ready to leave the ground with virtually no warming up because their power plants are without moving parts and oiling problems.

The sting they pack in mounted guns is considerable. Technical data on their performance still is unannounced. Judging from the demonstration, however, they appeared much faster than Hellcats, Corsairs, Kingcobras and Lightnings which also flew against our bombers.

Good Samaritan Pays $325 Toledo, O. (U.P.)—Isadore Schwartz is a Good Samaritan who "got it in the neck" when he befriended a stray dog. The canine later knocked Rose I. Crowley down on the street, and a jury in the court of Common Pleas Judge John M. McCabe awarded the woman $325 damages.
