

NAZI SS SOLDIER FROM L. A. GIVES UP TO AMERICANS

Former U. S. Resident Returns to Germany, Forced Into Hitler Youth Plan.

By Jack Frankish
United Press War Correspondent

Lansterwehe, Germany, Dec. 13—(U.P.)—He was wearing the black uniform of a Schutzstaffel tank man and he spoke only German.

So it was surprising to 1st Lt. Charles R. Stein of the Bronx, New York, who was checking in prisoners, when this loutish, 17-year-old youth said: "I'm from Los Angeles. My parents live there and it's not nice to fight against your own parents. I deserted the German army."

He glanced furtively at fellow prisoners and handed Stein a green card, bearing the photograph of a year-old boy. It had been issued by the United States consulate in Berlin in September, 1928, and gave permission for the child to enter the United States under the German quota.

Under questioning by Sgt. Leo L. Haas, Baltimore, Md., he told his story.

He had been taken to the United States by his parents in 1928 when he was a year and a half old. He lived with them in Los Angeles for five years and then was sent back to Germany to live with his grandparents. That was in 1933, the year Hitler rose to power.

At the age of 10 he was "forced" to join the Hitler youth. After leaving school he became an apprentice in an aircraft factory.

Less than two months ago he was called up for military service and was placed in training for an SS man.

According to his story he did not like military life and he complained to comrades who reported him to a sergeant. He was put in the guardhouse. He escaped and hiked to the front. He admitted that it was not until he became convinced recently that Germany was finished that he decided to attempt to reach American lines.

"Germany has lost the war and America has always been my ultimate goal," he said.

LONDON PROPOSES F.D.R. - CHURCHILL PARLEY AT ONCE

London, Dec. 14—(U.P.)—Anxiety over a rift between American and British foreign policies led today to proposals that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill, or their foreign ministers, confer immediately without waiting for a three-power conference including Russia.

A British foreign office commentator denied knowledge of any plans for Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius to visit London, and official quarters refused to say that any meeting was in prospect except the long-planned session of Premier Josef Stalin, Mr. Roosevelt and Churchill.

Nevertheless there was a strong feeling among diplomatic observers that a joint Anglo-American declaration of policy toward Europe was needed sorely. Some possibility was seen that such a declaration might be drafted without the formality of a meeting, then released simultaneously in London and Washington.

There was a sharp awareness here of an unfavorable drift in relations between Britain and the United States.

Many British editorial writers, rather than jump automatically to the defense of their country's policy, agreed that the Americans had grounds for suspicion of Britain's intentions, since many Britons harbor the same suspicions.

The influential Manchester Guardian, discussing the Anglo-American differences over the Greek crisis, said the first requisite should be "clearly to settle what the Allied policy is."
