TWO-CHILD STERILITY

Offhand I can't cite an authority for it, but in medical parlance there is a familiar phrase, "one-child sterility" which is significant to the physician if not to the layman. It suggests that the primipara (woman who has borne one child) has suffered, weeks or months afterward, one or more attacks of inflammation in the pelvic region, in consequence of which the Fallopian tubes have become obstructed, occluded, shut off by scar tissue, and hence the woman has become sterile. This is not the place to discuss the causes of such inflammation and consequent one-child sterility, nor can I make even an approximate guess about that in any instance from reading a description of the individual case—indeed I could offer no more than a guess about it even if I had all the data a doctor can obtain by examination and study of the patient. So don't ask me.

So much for one-child sterility. Now what is two-child sterility? It is what this correspondent thinks she wants: Dear Doctor:

I am 24 and have two children. There is only 18 months difference in their ages. Now when my baby is 14 months old I'm expecting another baby. I am not healthy enough to take care of any more. I have broken veins in one leg so that sometimes I can hardly walk.

I want your opinion about being sterilized...

(Signed) ...

There you have it, folks. Yankee two-child sterility is the spirit of our times.

Had this "birth control" racked been so unashamedly promoted when our parents were raising families as it is now, many of us who were not first or second born would not have been born into this vale of tears.

High School News

It is a pleasure to report that the honor roll for the second six weeks of this semester is as follows, with the juniors taking high honors again:

Seniors: Loyd Houston, Doris Clark, Vernon Gleaves, Pearl Brock, Delores Davis, Donna Daves, Louise Ellis, Wanda Johnson, Hortense Jennings, Wilma Neale, Ferny McKibben, Regina Smith, Mildred Shellbarger, Nancy Swem, Eileen Young, and Elaine Walker.

Mrs. Courtney who is in charge of gift wrapping at Mann's Department Store, demonstrated the technique of wrapping to the home economics classes at the high school on Monday.

An annual tuberculosis test was administered to about seventy-six senior high pupils by Doctor Merkel, county health doctor, on Monday. He was assisted by Miss Olive Curry, school nurse. Parents' consent was necessary before the tests were given.

At an informal Torch Honor meeting last Monday plans were discussed for the pay assembly to be given by this organization. President Gerald Pence appointed Elmer Kyle, chairman; Janet Horsley, and Ferny McKibben to make necessary arrangements.

F.C.A. boys, under the supervision of Leland S. Mentzer held a chili feed and basketball party Tuesday night.

The basketball game was between the apprentice boys, with Charles Robinson acting as captain, and the wood shop boys, with Kenneth Lindley as captain.

The young woman may be really ill. All I know about that is what she says—that she is not healthy enough to take care of more than two children. That has a familiar sound. A lot of badly educated young people about to marry or recently married assign "poor health" or "not strong" as their excuse for childlessness and a lot more are hard-boiled about it—they say they want to have some fun for a few years before they become tired down raising kids, or something to that effect.

This is no attempt to pass judgment on the moral or ethical aspect of the matter. I am speaking simply as a physician and a health adviser. If you please. After all, you should remember, health is happiness, and you're a damned fool if you think you can find happiness without health. Ask any old fool who has tried it.

As for varicose veins ("broken veins"), I invite readers who have such trouble to send a stamped pre-addressed envelope and ask for a pamphlet on Varicose Veins.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Lightweights
My husband is 35, six feet high, weighs 125 pounds. I am 25, five feet four inches high, weigh 105 pounds. Doctors found nothing wrong with my husband. But he has night sweats and is constantly tired. I feel fine if I could only put on a little weight.

Answer—Send stamped pre-addressed envelope for pamphlet "How to Gain Weight."

Keep Your Teeth
Our dentist looked at my teeth and said on account of my age (45) they should be extracted. When I said I wanted to save them he became insulting and said I should have an X-ray. I paid him ($88) for an X-ray, and he showed me the film but made no explanation. I might as well have looked at a Mickey Mouse film.

Answer—Evidently you consulted a dental quack. Certainly a patient's age is no excuse for extracting teeth. Perhaps your family physician will recommend a reliable dentist in your neighborhood. I'm sorry I have no data on dentists.

Central quack for Hernia
My husband on your recommendation had Dr. ... give him the ambulant treatment for hernia with complete success and we are grateful for your advice and for all of your teachings.

Answer—Your husband is one of a great many patients of Dr. ... who have been cured of hernia by his treatment. He is recognized as an authority on hernia—I don't know him personally, but my files bulge with letters from patients he has cured with ambulant treatment.

Models Decline To Pose Unadorned In Cold Paris Attics

Paris, Oct. 22.—(U.P.)—Shortage of fuel has brought modesty to the Paris Latin quarter, world center of nudist art, it was disclosed today.

Models who were formerly willing to pose unadorned for any number of brush wielders now refuse to take off their warm clothes in arctic-like garrets—even for Picasso, foremost painter now in Paris.

With an eye for art, the government has offered to send the Spanish modernist a special wagonload of wood, but he has refused to be favored.

"No coal for all," Picasso said, "no nudes."

The first prohibitory act against disposal of New York State's Adirondack lands was passed in 1850, forbidding the state to sell lands along the Raquette river at less than 15 cents an acre.

FILM FOLK GAVE THEIR CANDIDATES SUBSTANTIAL AID

Sacramento, Calif., Dec. 22.—(U.P.)—More than one-third of the total state Democratic campaign expenditures of 137,998 came from the Samuel Goldwyn-Southern California committee for Roosevelt including substantial receipts from Hollywood notables, it was disclosed today.

Film stars, producers and other members of the film colony also contributed to the Republican state war chest of $1,040,884, reports filed with Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan showed.

The list of silver screen contributors to the GOP fund was headed by Edward Arnold and Cecil B. De Mille, but the Republican committees did not specify the total amount received from the film colony. Amounts of contributions were not given.

Cinema figures who helped defray the Goldwyn committee expenses of $51,684 included Joseph M. Schenck and Mrs. Darryl Zanuck, $3000 each, and H. M. Warner, and Walter Wanger, $2000 apiece.

Some Gave $1000

Democratic contributors of $1000 each included Fanny Brice, James Cagney, Mervyn Leroy, Spencer Tracy, Jack Benny and J. L. Warner. In the $500 bracket were Paulette Goddard, John Garfield, Jean Hersholt and Edward G. Robinson.

Contributors of $250 included Dinah Shore, George Jessel, Al Jolson, Ernst Lubitsch, Sophie Tucker and Constance Bennett. Zeppo and Groucho Marx gave $100 each, as did Ida Lupino and Hugh Herbert.

progress, yet not nearly so much so as the personalities of its leaders and citizenry.

All of us have seen the changes brought about in a business due to a change in management. And the success of a marriage is influenced very little by when or where that marriage took place; the responsibility for success or failure lies with the parties married. So it is with every fact of living; time and place are incidental; who did what is all that matters.

Edison, if born in the stone age, would have hustled his tribe into the use of bronze in no time at all. Mozart would have wangled sweet tunes out of a kettle drum. A Neanderthal Moses would have lead his tribe to happier hunting grounds. The silver-tongued Bryan, if born before the spoken word had evolved, would have swayed prehistoric men with the passion and eloquence of his grunts and gestures.

Even as a child in school, I paid no never mind to dates and places. Always it was the individual who held my interest. It mattered not to me when or where Horatius held the bridge but that he did seemed a glorious achievement. As I read, I was with him and shared the good fight. I was contemporary with Hannibal and struggled across the Alps.

But I see I'll never be accepted into the newspaper fold until I quit regarding a report of time and place as so much excess baggage. Oh, well, who wants to be included in that verbose bunch anyway!
