Little Girl Waits Death By Leukemia, Dread Blood Illness

Aurora, Ill., Dec. 28.—(U.P.)—Too young to know the meaning of death, six-year-old Patricia Attaway, a victim of lymphatic Leukemia, an incurable blood disease, lies today in a hospital filled with toys she never will be able to enjoy, and talks of days when she will be well enough to go to school.

The pretty, brown-haired little girl has been living on borrowed time for weeks, but her physician, Dr. E. M. Thomas, said it was nearly exhausted and death may come at any moment.

"Only a miracle can save her," Thomas said. "Indeed, it is a miracle that she has lived this long."

All the Christmas toys dear to the heart of a child fill her room, but she eyes them listlessly. Her main interest is in her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Attaway, who keep a constant vigil at her bedside.

EUROPEAN FOOD SUPPLY MAY BE LOWER IN 1945

Washington (U.P.)—European agriculture is increasingly feeling the effects of war, an agriculture department survey report showed.

Continental Europe, with the exception of Russia, will have a somewhat smaller food supply during 1944-45 than last year and only 85 per cent of the pre-war supply, the department report showed.

"The 1944 harvest was poorer even than the subnormal harvest of 1943," the office of foreign agricultural relations said, with a decline in the production of grains, sugar beets and vegetables oils. Meat production increased slightly but no improvements have occurred in the output of milk and eggs, OFAR said.

German Imports Down
If Germany must live exclusively on home-produced food in 1944-45, the average caloric intake per person will drop 15 per cent. The deterioration of the German food situation was attributed partly to an adverse season and partly to decreased imports, which have furnished 12 per cent of the nation's food supply.

"The extent to which Germany may be able to offset reduced crops and losses in supplies from abroad by withdrawals from stocks and by a discontinuance in food shipments to Finland, Belgium and Norway cannot be predicted," the department said.

The Russian food situation is improved over 1943-44 but will remain tight for the civilian survey. Responsible for the improvement were a good harvest, termination of German requisitions and prospects of obtaining food surpluses from the Danube Basin which formerly went to Germany.

Countries Listed
The outlook in other European countries:
France—Larger supplies from home-produced food. However, unless transportation facilities are restored, substantial imports will be required if present low rations are to be honored.

Italy—More food than last year but domestic supplies still will fall short of quantities needed to cover even small wartime rations.

Greece—The food supply situation "remains bad" and large imports will be required if low consumption levels in cities and deficit farm areas are to improve.

Belgium—Imports will be needed if low-level consumption of war years is to increase.

The Netherlands—Food supplies may be sufficient for some consumption level as last year. However, flooding and military operations are likely to have serious effects on distribution.

Finland—The difficult situation resulting from the cessation of German imports has been offset somewhat by relief shipments from Sweden.

Polish Outlook Bad
Poland—"An already extremely unsatisfactory food situation is likely to be aggravated further" by increased German requisition of farm products.

Denmark—Food supplies should be near last year's high level unless increased exports to Germany are required.

Danube Basin—Food situation as a whole "on the favorable side."

Sweden—As much food as last year when import needs were small.

Spain and Portugal—Supplies somewhat better than last year.

Switzerland—Continued dependence on imports.
Egypt and Turkey—"The food outlook is good."
Austria and Czechoslovakia—Supplies will run "somewhat below" last year.

Chaplin Jury Checks For Resemblance

An expressionless Charlie Chaplin (right) stands before the jury box as Joan Barry holds little Carol Ann while the talesmen tried to see whether there was any facial resemblance. The trial underwent a two-minute scrutiny, highlight of the Los Angeles hearing Miss Barry's paternity suit.

Yanks Rally, Hit Back

American counter-attacks have checked Germans' drive for Meuse River line, recapturing Celles, enemy's farthest point of advance, and also hurling enemy back from nearby Celles. Other small gains were reported on southern flank and a relief column was making headway toward encircled Bastogne.
