QUIET PREVAILS IN GOVERNMENT WARD FIRM FUSS

Chicago, Dec. 30—(U.P.)—A controversy between the federal government and Montgomery Ward & Company was in recess today with decision as to the operator of the plant, pending until Tuesday, after the long week-end over New Year's day.

Sewell Avery, defiant chairman of the board of the mail-order firm who has said that the army will have to throw him out "or fence me out," occupied his office until the usual quitting time and left for home expressing determination to be on the job next Tuesday.

Meantime, baffled army officers who had been denied working space by the company after government seizure of the Ward plants Thursday moved a van load of furniture into an auditorium not far from the spot where 70-year-old Avery held forth.

The army created its own working space, it was explained, because there were no vacant offices and those in charge did not want to use space required by Ward executives who, under the army's plan, will continue doing their regular jobs.

Forming its own working space helped the army but was rough on members of the press who had been using the auditorium as a press room. After the army moved in the newsmen roamed the hallways.

Although Ward vice-presidents had refused to deliver to army officers certain accounting books and records, Hugh Cox, assistant attorney general who came here in connection with legal phases of the seizure, said before leaving for Washington that "army accountants now have access to the books."
