GIVE THE BABY A BREAK

My husband drinks quite a lot of beer. We have a four year old son. When he is drinking he will let our son pick up the bottle and drink beer also. I have re-monstrated but he says it will not hurt the child. (Mrs. N. H. R.)

Would you advise giving about 1/4 of an aspirin tablet every two or three hours to a child 2 1/2 years old to break up a cold? (W. R.)

The only water my wife will let our six months old baby have to drink is water that has been boiled with some kind of syrup and oil added. Whenever I want to give the baby plain tap water (our city water is pure) she says it is not good for him. (R. N.)

My baby is 2 years old and takes evaporated milk and water (boiled) half and half, also some small amounts of meat, cheese, eggs and vegetables. Inasmuch as she likes her milk formula and drinks quite a lot of it, should I keep her on it or change to bottled milk? (Mrs. C. M.)

Such queries, fairly representative of the general popular knowledge of the care of the baby, indicate that the average baby in Yankee land doesn't get a very good break.

Giving a young child tastes of alcoholic liquor or beverage is reprehensible not merely because it cultivates a desire or craving for narcotics (of which alcohol is one) but because even a little alcohol is poisonous to a young child, which explains why children who get hold of liquor may die of acute intoxication.

As I have said here many times aspirin, in my opinion, neither cures nor "breaks up" any disease or ailment. It is less dangerous than other sense-deadening drugs whose vendors tell the dimwit Yankee wisecracker public will "help" whatever aches, pains or worries the dimwits have. But to ply an ailing child with aspirin is my idea of maltreatment. Leave the child alone. Time to give an ailing child medicine when the doctor directs you to do so.

Strange notion, that a baby should not be given all the water he wants to drink, without any admixture. Nearly three-fourths of the baby's weight is water. Of course most of the baby's food (breast milk or bottle formula) is water, but plain cold water may be given from spoon or bottle whenever the baby seems to want it.

Instead of pampering the two-year-old child with evaporated milk and water, half and half, the mother should offer the child pure fresh milk, Grade A Raw from tuberculin-tested herd if it is available, otherwise Grade A Pasteurized—or any fresh milk which is par-boiled—brought to a boil for one minute only—this makes any milk perfectly safe for infant, child or adult.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE GIVEN BY RICHARD J. DAVIS

A lecture on Christian Science entitled "Christian Science: The Fulfillment of Prophecy and Promise," was given Sunday afternoon in the Senior High school auditorium by Richard J. Davis, C.S.B., of San Jose, Calif. The lecture by Mr. Davis, who is a member of the Board of Lecturers of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., follows in part:

Christ Jesus illustrated, by his entire life, the coincidence of the divine with the human. He appeared as a human being, but his knowledge of divine facts, that which constituted his Christhood, existed entirely apart from the sense of a material body, even while he went about doing the ordinary things of life. He was able to heal the sick, raise the dead, and save the sinner, and in all of this he did not associate himself with the belief of matter. It was his absolute acknowledgment of the perfection of being that brought forth the evidence of healing and physical harmony. Referring to this, Mrs. Eddy says in "No and Yes" (p. 30): "Jesus' true and conscious being never left heaven for earth. It abode forever above, even while mortals believed it was here. . . . The real Christ was unconscious of matter, of sin, disease, and death, and was conscious only of God, of good, of eternal Life, and harmony. Hence the human Jesus had a resort to his higher self and relation to the Father, and there could find rest from unreal trials in the conscious reality and royalty of his being,—holding the mortal as unreal, and the divine as real."

Now, if Jesus evidenced the divine and human coincidence, may we not as well? Has your incorporeal, divine selfhood ever left heaven for earth? No. Just as did the Master, you and I can maintain and hold to our perfection of being, and at the same time apply that understanding to the multitudinous forms of erroneous belief that come before us to be denied and destroyed. On page 332 of Science and Health we read: "Into the real and ideal man the fleshy element cannot enter. Thus it is that Christ illustrates the coincidence, or spiritual agreement, between God and man in His image."

How and Why Jesus Healed
In the fifth chapter of John we have a striking illustration of how Jesus dealt scientifically with the beliefs of sin and heredity. Meeting on the road a man blind from birth, his disciples questioned the Master, apparently thinking that the man was being punished with blindness, because of sin, perhaps committed by his parents. In explanation, Jesus answered, "Neither hath this man sinned, nor his parents; but that the works of God should be made manifest in him." Holding to the eternal and unaltered perfection of man as the reflection of God, he set aside as false and untrue the cruel belief of heredity and sinful transmission. He denied the belief of suffering and penalty. He saw clearly that neither this man nor his parents were, in their true being, sinners. He forgave the belief of sin by detaching it from man and recognizing it only as an evil imposition of mortal mind. The so-called evidences of blindness, of sin and heredity, were alike unreal to him. Perfection alone was the fact, to Jesus, and on that basis he healed the blind man.

DRASTIC CHANGE STATE TAX PLAN URGED AT SALEM

Salem, Ore., Jan. 29.—(U.P.)—The Oregon legislature looked forward today to an increasingly stiff routine, after completing a busy third week of the 1945 session.

Interest swung to Oregon's taxes during the latter part of the week, with two bills introduced into the house which would cause a drastic change in the financial structure of the state, with the virtual repeal of the "Walker Plan." Under the plan, all money collected by the income tax, over and above certain basic requirements, goes for the reduction of future tax. In 1943 it was 70 per cent reduction; in 1944, 30 per cent.

The new bills would establish a different setup, with no income tax reduction provided for—the surplus money going into a postwar construction fund.

Gov. Earl Snell predicted that if all the request for funds now on file with the legislature were to be granted, a new tax of some kind would have to be levied.

The governor in effect reiterated his request for a searching recheck of the present tax system and the discovery of possible new sources of revenue. One of the highlights of last week was the final organization of the joint legislative committee appointed to investigate two distillery purchases by the Oregon liquor control commission in 1943, in conjunction with the Washington commission.

TUGBOATS NEEDED

Inquiries practically identical have been received recently from two correspondents. "What is the strange light seen lately very low in the northwestern evening sky? It changes color, flashes violently, and at times whirls dizzily in a tiny circle." This is none other than the bright star Vega seen through the dense and hazy atmosphere very near the horizon. Vega creates no excitement when high in the sky, but when near its setting point in the far northwest its light passing through a great thickness of dense air reaches us in very distorted form.

A star on the horizon is seen through about 35 times more air than when directly overhead. A fly above the surface of moving water, near the bank, must present a most fantastic sight to a fish near the middle of the stream. We view the setting stars sideways from the bottom of a sea of turbulent air.
