IODINE IN FOOD

Ideally one should get the necessary amount of iodine in food and drinking water. Perhaps some people do. But iodine as it occurs in nature (iodides or compounds of iodine) is so very soluble that it is constantly dissolved out of the soil and carried from elevated regions down the streams and rivers to the sea. Sea water and all fish and shell-fish from the sea are rich in iodine, whether consumer raw, cooked, canned, dried smoked or salted. Dried kelp and Irish moss (otherwise known as chondrus and carrageen) contain some iodine.

In the Great Lakes basin (in Canada and in the United States) the soil is poor in iodine, likewise the drinking water and the food (vegetables, cereals, fruits, milk, eggs, meats) grown on the soil. Hence endemic goitre prevails in that region of the country and people living there, as well as livestock, require some regular iodine ration to supplement the natural iodine in food and water.

Since the use of iodized salt instead of ordinary salt has become popular in the entire Great Lakes region, the prevalence of simple goitre among school children and older persons has shown a striking decrease. Moreover the number of operations for all forms of goitre in the large hospitals has diminished. Iodized salt looks, tastes and in every way is the same as ordinary salt, and it costs the same. It contains little if any more iodine than one gets in, say, canned salmon—probably a pound of iodized salt is as abundant as a pound of ordinary salt. So it is absurd to imagine any one can detect iodized salt by its taste or that any one can possibly get too much iodine from iodized salt or that any one can get any ill effect from iodized salt that or

SHASTA SOLDIER OUTWITTED JAPS IN PRISON CAMP

The story of how a serviceman outsmarted the Japanese while working in a Philippine island prison camp motor pool, was recently published in the Yreka (Cal.) Journal. The young Yreka, Bailey Soule, is a nephew of Dr. A. A. Soule of Medford and the son of Mrs. Andrew Soule of Little Shasta, Calif.

A comrade of young Soule, Bob Kiker of Auburn, Cal., wrote Mrs. Soule details of their internment, how her son outwitted his captors while presumably "working" in the motor pool and how, in spite of adversities, laughter and sang and kept his fellow prisoners in better spirits.

"He and other men had to work in a Jap motor pool in Davao for about a year," Kiker wrote. "Naturally, none of them wanted to but they knew they had to do it. They ate better and got much better treatment than the rest of the men."

"Bailey used to divide the week into sections. One day he would tear down carburetors and see how many parts he could lose. Another day would be music appreciation day and he would fix one truck and then long and sing. They never did accomplish anything there. They would fix one truck and then take parts off of it to fix another."

Orchestra Formed
"In Malabayan he had an orchestra and played the clarinet and trumpet. While at the Davao motor pool he got some string some place and made a ukulele out of a coconut shell and some camphor wood, I think, for the neck."

"Of course, you know what a sense of humor he had. He used to sit around by the hour and keep us in stitches all of the time. He was always in good spirits."

Both Soule and Kiker were on the Japanese ship transferring prisoners between islands when it was torpedoed by a United States submarine in the Philippine sea last September. Soule was not seen again, but Kiker was one of 83 men rescued. One of his companions was Sgt. Bill Horton of Medford, now home on a month's furlough after being hospitalized in Australia before returning to this country. Kiker was still hospitalized at the time of writing to Mrs. Soule of her son.

GOVERNOR ARGUES
Sacramento, Feb. 19 — (U.P.)—Gov. Earl Warren today took issue with a statement of California Medical Association officials that the compulsory health insurance he has proposed would be too costly.

The first crude pocket lighter appeared early in the 1800's. It consisted of a vial of sulphuric acid and a chemically treated splinter which ignited when dipped into the bottle.

EARNINGS NOT GIVEN BY SOCIAL SECURITY BOARD
Kiamath Falls — Don't ask your Social Security Board field office for a statement of your 1944 earnings for income tax purposes, Charles L. Maginnis, manager of the Kiamath Falls field office requested today.

"The Social Security Board cannot help you because your employer's tax return will not have reached the Board in time to permit it to make available a statement of your annual earnings for income tax returns," Maginnis said.
