Aussie Brides Of Yank Servicemen Await Transport

By United Press
Marriages between American soldiers and Australian girls are running into the thousands and requests for transportation of brides to the United States are increasing, the Melbourne radio reported today.

The broadcast, heard by United Press in San Francisco, quoted a government spokesman as estimating that 1200 wives of American servicemen, with 300 children, have visas and are awaiting transport. Several hundred already have made the trip. He said there are about 5,000 more brides in Australia and between 5,000 and 10,000 fiancées of American servicemen.
