Your Health and Its Care

WHAT SHOULD CHILDREN WEAR

When I was a youngster, writes reader R. K., my mother bundled me up in scarves and flannels and I had several bellowing colds every year. When I began to wear only necessary clothing my colds became less frequent. I have worn only the lightest clothing the year around for many years —I am 70 now and haven't had anything like a cold for 30 years I enjoy excellent health.

Dr. Brady

Ensign P. G. Nolan, adrift in the south Atlantic in an open boat for 39 days, said:

"I was soaking wet every minute of those 39 days and I came through in good health. But it took me just two days to catch cold when I got to New York."

Prof Leonard Hill, noted English physiologist and authority on fresh and air conditioning, said:

"It is absurd to put on an overcoat when going out for a walk It is good to go out and be braced by feeling cold and so be impelled to take vigorous exercise."

Dr. Hill meant that to apply to everybody. I. Brady, urge parents to apply the same science and common sense to the welfare of children. When your little one is going out to play, for health's sake do not burden the poor kid with more clothing than the child needs for comfort

A mother says her son is at the runabout age and likes to play out doors. But leggings hamper his movements and she would like definite instructions about covering the child's legs and insisting that the child put on a sweater, etc., whenever he goes out to play. Her own pediatrician agrees with me, she says but he tells her he simply dares not force his opinion upon mothers. . .

The only instructions I can give this mother or any parent who wants to do what is best for a child I have already given. I repeat, don't put a stitch more clothing or cover on the child in any circumstances than the child wants—I do not say needs, but wants—to wear. This advice, remember, is health advice.

If physicians dared to tell the truth, I wonder how many would be found in the same boat with the pediatrician who agrees with my teachings, but dares not risk losing the patronage of some of those parents who like to turn up their noses at the ordinary practitioner and drag their precious pampered young 'uns to a "specialist" every time the young 'uns get off their feed. I'm sorry for those kids, too.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

"Dead" Tooth

Do you agree that a "dead tooth" is a menace to health as long as it remains in the mouth." I am 31 When I was 13 the dentist removed the nerve from a molar and filled the space. X-rays do not definitely show the tooth to be abscessed, but are interpreted as "doubtful." Several dentists have advised extraction—some physicians agree, others do not. (F. G. O.)

Answer—I'd sacrifice such a tooth only when good clinical evidence of some damage to health warranted. Never on X-ray evidence alone. A tooth from which the pulp (imeroptrly called "nerve") has been removed is not "dead" necessarily. It may serve you well for many years. Somebody should bring suits against dentists and/or physicians who arbitrarily advise extraction of useful teeth—the victim of the atrocity might reasonably claim at least $100 compensation for each tooth so unnecessarily sacrificed.

Change

Mother is in the change and has a lot of trouble with hot flashes. (A. K. W.)

Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for (no clipping, please) pamphlet "The Menopause."

Worms

I have Ben Told old raw carrots will rid the body of worms. (B. W. McN.)

Answer—You ought to know, Ben, by now "Unbidden Guests" is a booklet dealing with worms, household pests, vermin, copy mailed on request if you inclose 10 cents and stamped envelope bearing your address.

Clippings

Why are you so difficult about clippings? (F. J.)

Answer—Clippings waste our time, are too easily lost. If you can't ask for it in your own words you will not understand what it is all about anyway.
