Gloomy Gust Johnson, who has practically conducted a one-man campaign in the Medford armory wrestling arena in an attempt to beat the Gray Mask, will take another shot at the Californian in the main event of Mack Lillard's weekly fracas tonight. Johnson, who was recently stripped of his coast junior heavyweight crown, has fallen before the violent head butts of "Old Stoneface" on three occasions but still feels his leg strap is the answer to the question of how to beat the hooded hoodlum.

They will tangle for six rounds or the best two out of three falls. The Mask has a contract with Lillard which calls for him to unmask if he is beaten two out of three falls. If he loses a one-fall match, he does not have to remove his hood, Lillard said. Ernie Piluso, headlock specialist from Portland and long a favorite in the local grapple palace, will lock grips with Tony Ross in the four round semi-windup tussle. In his last appearance here Ross displayed a tendency to "teer clear of the rough stuff, much to the surprise of the fans. If he does so with Piluso, a fine grappling contest is expected.

Walter "Sneeze" Achleu, whose jiu-jitsu maneuvers produce the dreaded "Chinese Sleeper" on his mat foes, will clash with kidney-punching Billy McEuin in the three round opener which goes to the mat promptly at 8:30 p. m.
