Speakers Present Facts On Thailand For Study Meeting

Mrs. M. M. Morris and Mrs. Frances Cochran were on the program for the last meeting of the Wednesday Study club, both discussing Thailand. Mrs. Morris described modern Thailand, stating that the country was about the size of Texas with double the population. It is considered an advanced Asiatic country, the speaker said, with a lazy, peace-loving people who depend upon help from other nations for harvesting the crops of rice, pepper and cotton. Mining and fishing are other industries. Mrs. Morris said. Buddhism predominates as a religion, according to the speaker, and she also explained Thailand's position in the present war.

Mrs. Cochran reviewed "Anna and the King of Siam" by Margaret Lauden, explaining that Anna was the daughter of a British officer who accepted a position teaching the children of the king, and later the wives of the palace. She eventually served as interpreter, accepted many responsible duties and through her acts of mercy became known as the "white angel." When the prince took the throne, Anna's teaching and influence began to show, in the beginning of religious freedom and modern ideas of liberty and justice for the nation, the speaker said.

The club recently lost one of its charter members in the death of Mrs. H. C. (Ella) Wortman. Mrs. A. J. Hanby, in the hospital for many weeks, was reported to be improving and able to return home soon.

At the next meeting a program on National Music Week will be given, with Mrs. F. E. Nichols in charge.
