LITTLE WOMAN ALSO BUSY (Monmouth, Ore., Herald) "Reminiscing over the fact that we are on our 30th year in Monmouth we developed some personal interest in calculating that in the interval we have helped to get out more than 1500 issues of the Herald, or 12,000 pages of printed matter which would constitute quite a book.

The Missus did a little thinking in the interval and then suggested that in the same time she had made some 30,000 beds, swept 30,000 room floors, baked 5000 pies, pared a car-load of potatoes and apples."

Editorial Correspondence

San Francisco, May 3.—This conference is like a political convention in many ways. The delegates have come here from all points of the compass, they are very proud of their authority and nine out of ten of them, want to be heard and felt.

The weather is better today which always helps. And the war news gets better and better also, which helps even more. In spite of President Truman's official confirmation of Hitler's death, one of the British newsmen at breakfast this morning was certain this is only another "dirty Nazi trick."

Incidentally the U. S. navy has rendered a most valuable service to the delegates and newsmen at this conference running frequent buses from Union Square to the conference and back free of charge, and in speed almost equal to normal taxi service.

Speaking of husky girls,—more of them in public service here than anywhere else. They not only drive buses and taxis but street cars, elevators, and act as traffic policemen and speed-cops.

A group of casuals from Letterman Hospital attended the plenary session yesterday, serious-looking boys, adding a new touch of color in their maroon lounging robes.

The Nation, we are told, will take a terrific rap at the refusal to delay the admission of Argentina as Molotov requested.

The United States not only believes American (North and South) solidarity extremely important at this gathering, and refusal to admit Argentina would have rendered such solidarity impossible.

There was no denial Argentina's record during the war had been bad, that its conversion to the United Nations cause was sudden and belated but the government felt the benefits of admitting Argentina from the standpoint of western hemisphere unity and world peace, far outweighed the possible injuries or disadvantages.

San Francisco has always been a cosmopolitan place, but now it's a perfect tower of Babel. Had luncheon at Pierre's today and before we left had heard every language but German and Eskimo, and not entirely sure we didn't hear the latter.

We wish some expert in the Good Neighbor policy would explain how it is that the Mexicans can have all the American cigarettes they care to buy, also U. S. bacon and chewing gum, while all three are so hard to get north of the Rio Grande?

We have been unable to find any butter in San Francisco as yet although some of the hotels, they say, still serve it. In Los Angeles there was plenty of butter—well not that exactly, but butter was served at breakfast and dinner if not at lunch.

If peace in Europe isn't signed before Saturday it won't be the S. F. Call's fault. Ever since that fake "Nazis quit" extra of last Saturday the Call has bawled the fact that peace is just around the corner.

News Behind The News

By Paul Mallon

San Francisco, May 7 — The nine-point program of Dumbarton Oaks amendments adopted by the American delegation represented quite a personal victory for Senator Vandenberg.

The ideal of "justice" through the charter and opportunity for future peaceful change of the world setup as well as the charter. Other forces prescribed what seemed in general to me to be basic changes of theory from Dumbarton Oaks along the same lines, such as specific inclusion of the Atlantic Charter ideals, return to international law, world court, safeguarding human rights, etc.

From a political standpoint the doctrines of international law and world court have a republican origin, while the Atlantic Charter and human rights lines were developed by Mr. Roosevelt.

The British have effected some notable democratic cooperation also in a delegation which is split three ways, with four conservatives, three socialists and two liberals.

It is too early to make any worthwhile guess of the political or personal results of the gathering. Vandenberg has impressed newsmen with the way he has handled his press conferences, and if the results here are carried through he no doubt will assume leadership in the republican party.

Minnesota's ex-Governor Stassen, on the other hand, has not been able to win victories for his former one world viewpoint, which, indeed was made implicit by events long before this conference.

INCIDENTALLY in this connection Mr. Truman gave out through Nelson Rockefeller in Washington the other day what seemed to be a denial of the rumors that State Secretary Stettinius would be dropped after the conference.

But returning to the nine points, there seemed to be one omission. As a newspaperman I have long thought the necessities of a free press were the very cornerstones of liberty and without that cornerstones no sound structure could be erected.

The ideal of freedom of press is in the Atlantic charter in theory but not specifically mentioned. In the ninth point, the cultural objectives (which China inspired) the prospect for it is supposed how to be included more directly.

But actual to freedom of thought and seems to be less of a "cultural" quality than a basic human right. Statesmen, in my opinion, have paid too little attention to this fundamental necessity for a future peaceful world.
