FUHRER LIVED IN LUXURY AT HILLTOP HOUSE

Hitler Lived to German People by Telling Them He Shared Hardships of War

By Jack Fleischer
United Press Correspondent

Hitler's Eagle Nest, atop Kehlstein Mountain, May 7.—(Delayed)—(U.P.)—Adolf Hitler lied to his German people when he told them he too was sharing the hardships of war.

For here atop towering Kehlstein mountain, Hitler lived in luxury at his Bavarian retreat, far too lavish for a man who pretended to be suffering the same burdens as his people.

The one-time Nazi fuhrer called this sumptuous hideout his eagle's nest. And it was an appropriate name. It is really a dream house in the clouds, nestled among the snow drifts on an Alpine peak, 7,500 feet above sea level.

Breath-Taking View
From the over-size windows in the huge salon are breath-taking views. On one side are snow-covered mountain peaks, sometimes glistening in the sun, then wrapped in clouds of mist. Below in the valley is the town of Berchtesgaden and the bomb-smashed ruins of Hitler's more permanent residence.

It took a two and a half hour exhausting climb over snow drifts up to 12 feet deep to reach Hitler's eagle's nest. At the top we found a good-size building of extremely solid construction, with walls about three feet thick of quarried limestone blocks.

Large Rooms
In front of the building was a medium-sized hall which led straight to a magnificent dining room, about 24 feet wide and 50 feet long. The walls and ceiling were beautiful walnut with white oak panels. In the center was a black walnut table, capable of seating 26 persons. Sideboards and buffets along the walls were filled with exquisite Meissner china, of a fine red dragon motif on a white background.

Beyond at a slightly lower level was an almost circular salon, about 50 feet in diameter. The walls were mauve blocks of limestone and the ceiling white oak open beams with white plaster between. In the center was a two-foot high table, about 10 feet in diameter, while around the walls were a couple of big davenport and about 50 comfortable chairs.

2 Years To Build
Opposite the salon's five huge windows was a fireplace, fronted with chocolate-colored marble with white streaks. The interior had a cast-iron lining divided in three panels. The center panel bore the date 1938, when the building was finished after two years work.

Those two rooms, together with an ultra-modern kitchen of stainless steel and completely electrified, a 60-foot arched terrace overlooking the valley and a well and finely stocked wine-cellar, were typical of the "simple-living" Hitler.

Lt. Harmon Edge, Merchant Marine Veteran Visitor

A merchant marine for 12 years and survivor of three sinkings since the beginning of the war, Lt. Harmon K. Edge is in Medford visiting his mother and step-father, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bliss, Kings Highway. Lt. Edge recently returned from 12 months overseas service in Persia, India and Palestine. He has served in the Mediterranean, Pacific and Atlantic and participated in the invasion of Casa Blanca. The officer wears the Pre-Pearl Harbor ribbon and the combat ribbon with three silver stars for sinkings. He was one of five survivors in the loss of one ship.

Lt. Edge is in Medford on a 30-day leave and will report to New York for further duty at the end of his visit.

SGT. JAMES J. LEWIS IS WOUNDED IN GERMANY

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lewis, 612 Catherine street, received news yesterday from the War Department that their son, Sgt. James J. Lewis, was slightly wounded April 26, while serving in Germany with Patton's Third Army. Sgt. Lewis left for overseas last September and has been serving with a tank battalion.
