THEIR WIVES AND I

A good many alcoholics put away a half pint or more of whisky on the side, and drink their beer in public, says my medical colleague who is a recognized authority on the effects of alcohol. The beer serves as an excuse for their "breath" and as an alibi to help show they do not drink heavily but only "some beer". Beer gets the blame. I know what I'm talking about (the psychologist continues). I hear the "beer alibi" daily.

Dr. Brady, believe me, a quart of beer a day is not heavy drinking and it does not shorten life. But I shall tell you what your statement does do (that is, the statement in this column that a working man who eats nothing at breakfast but drinks a quart of beer and goes to work on that alone is well on the way to, if not already affected by physical degeneration). Every hypercritical wife who has a husband who drinks some beer has Dr. Brady thrown at his head until he goes out and gets drunk to escape you and his wife.

Oh, come, now, Doctor, I refer to you as an authority on physiology and especially on the effects of alcohol, but your psychology. It rhymes with drinker. If the individual who purports to be a man goes out and gets drunk on any such pretext as that, I should say the poor soul—and so must have been well along on his way to degeneration and early death before his wife ever discovered that I maintain alcoholic beverages and liquors are unnecessary for anybody and rather injurious for everybody who indulges in them. But go on, Doctor. I know you have something sensible to suggest. Like you, I deplore the excessive use of alcohol—

DRIVE MEN TO DRINK

Excuse me again, Professor, I not only deplore the excessive use, I deplore any use at all of any kind of alcoholic beverage or liquor—except as prescribed in good faith by one's physician. —and believe, again like you, that it constitutes one of the major public health problems of today. But why, of all beverages, pick on beer?

If we could get the American drinker to use nothing stronger than beer, I think the problem of alcoholism would become unimportant. It is the high concentration of alcohol in distilled spirits that gives the excessive drinker the "kick" he seeks and the alcoholic degeneration he eventually develops. Like the late Dr. Yandell Henderson, I think that anything that tends to lower the concentration of alcohol in alcoholic beverages is a step toward ameliorating alcoholism.

There you have something, Doctor. But how can we get the American drinker to do that?

I'd like to thank you for your advice about running a car. I had the trouble for three years. It is now two years since my car stopped running. I have recommended this to a friend who had running car and he got the same fine results. (M. L. E.)

Answer—Instructions for the use of the home remedy mailed on request if you provide stamped envelope bearing your address. Do not send a clipping. Advanced Physiology (M. L. E.) Please give me some information on thyroid—streptococcus, its history, treatment, cause and cure if any. This is for a thesis in my physiology class. I am a high school senior. (G. M.) Answer—I don't know what thyroiditis is. Thyroid is the name of the gland in the neck, that is enlarged in goiter. Streptococcus is the name of a kind of germ, strains of which commonly cause severe sore throat, scarlet fever, erysipelas, acute blood poisoning, etc.

Foot Itch Two years ago this summer I had a bad attack of athlete's foot. At that time I wore silk socks. Have not worn the socks since, until the past two weeks, and the same trouble has again broken out. (C. H.) Answer—The fungus of foot itch may live in cloth, in shoe linings, etc. For a long time, soak socks and shoe linings with formaldehyde solution and let them dry for a day in the sun before wearing. (John F. Dille Co.)

AMOUNT SPENT ON BEER AMAZES BRITISH TOWN Great Wyrley, Staffordshire, Eng. U.P.—Staggered by statistics and not by their drinking, the 4,000 residents of this little mining village have learned that they spend approximately £25,000 annually on beer.

The men blame it on the women, saying the women are the heavy drinkers and that actually the village as a whole is abstemious. But the receipts of the town's two pubs prove the £25,000 expenditure.
