

STUDENTS SIGN FOR RED CROSS SWIM CAMPAIGN

Pre-registration for the Red Cross learn to swim campaign, to be conducted at Twin Plunges, Ashland, June 18 to June 30 is being taken through the public schools this week in Medford and Ashland. "This is one of the best opportunities ever offered to the children of Jackson county," stated E. H. Hedrick, Medford school superintendent, "and parents should let nothing stand in the way of their children taking advantage of learning to swim under expert instruction." Final arrangements for the campaign were made this week by Robert Dodge, water safety chairman, and Sidney Liambias, Red Cross field representative from San Francisco, who spent two days conferring with Red Cross and school officials, setting up details. At Superintendent Hedrick's request, Liambias talked to boys of the senior and junior classes of Medford high school on functional or combat swimming, which Liambias has taught in army and navy military installations since Pearl Harbor. If sufficient number of young men register from the high schools of the county, requesting combat swimming, Dodge states the committee will plan to add this training course to the already extensive program set up. Details on time and pool arrangements will be announced later. Free Transportation The already enthusiastic response to the first swimming campaign to be conducted by the local chapter since 1942 may make it necessary to have two instructors, according to Dodge. In one school alone 100 children have signified intention of registering. Free transportation by a char-

The pool has been released from 9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. Free instructions will be given to both adults and children in swimming, diving, and lifesaving. Persons desiring further information are asked to call the Red Cross office, 4405. No one under seven years of age will be eligible and all minors must have consent of their parents, Dodge said. Daily attendance is requested.
