ELIMINATION
When the eliminative organs of the body are not functioning properly, this causes an accumulation of toxic material. It indicates a depleted bodily resistance. Normal nerve function is the prerequisite to health, since it enables the nerve cells of the body to build up a strong resistance to invading forces. The breakdown of the eliminative organs is usually the first line of defense to give way. It is important to the maintenance or the regaining of your health that it be repaired at once. With eliminative channels functioning normally and complete relaxation, you soon regain vital bodily resistance.
