THE ITCH GOES AROUND

When my nine-year-old daughter broke out with it (writes a reader from up north—she does not explain how she knew the child had it—scabies, a three-syllable word, pronounced s-k-a-b-ee-z, a c-c-e-n-t on the ska) I rubbed her with sulphur and lard for two weeks. Seeing she was getting worse instead of better I gave her one-half teaspoonful of sulphur and jelly the first and fourth day and she was relieved and her skin cleared beautifully. Would it be a good policy to give her this tonic every spring? (Mrs. B.H.)

If the child had the itch (scabies) it is unlikely that merely rubbing with sulphur and lard would cure the disease, although it might irritate the skin and aggravate whatever the primary skin trouble may be. Of course, if the trouble was really the itch taking sulphur internally could have had no influence upon it.

Nine times out of ten a skin eruption or breaking out that itches a good deal is not scabies. Scabies, old fashioned "seven-year" itch, properly treated can be cured in twenty-four hours. Being due to the itch mite, a minute insect barely visible to the naked eye, which burrows in the skin and deposits its eggs in the burrows, it is highly contagious through direct contact with objects which have been contaminated by a person with the disease—clothing, papers, books, toilet articles, hats (trying on), doorknobs, hanging straps, chair arms, etc.

The diagnosis of scabies is not easy unless the physician is familiar with it and on the alert. One reason why the itch goes around in the spring and early summer is that a case has escaped recognition and the patient innocently carries the disease into a community where he or she goes to work or play.

It is doubtful whether any new-fangled remedy or treatment for the itch is superior to sulphur ointment, provided this is properly used. Sulphur ointment is not just sulphur and lard, but the official U. S. P. sulphur ointment containing approximately 15% sulphur and the sulphur is extinguished—so finely incorporated in the ointment base that no particle can be seen or felt with the fingers. At least half a pound of the ointment is necessary.

First a prolonged hot bath and an all-over scrub with soap and water and brush, to the limit of tolerance. Then dry, and thoroughly rub the sulphur ointment on every part of the skin that shows any sign of trouble. Wash next morning a bath, clean clothes, clean bedclothes and clean linen. If the sulphur ointment is properly made and applied as described, not just dabbed on here and there, a cure should be obtained. Of course re-infestation will occur if any clothing or toilet article or bed linen used before the treatment is used again without laundering, a day in the sun, or dry cleaning.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS
Preparing for Maternity
My wife expects her first child in about three months. Her condition is good except swelling of the feet and she can sleep only four hours a night. A doctor advised her to lie on her back with feet up against the wall, but that seems impossible for her. (G. W. R.)

Answer—Then try elevating her feet from six to ten inches (blocks that high under lower legs of bed). Send stamped envelope bearing your address and inclose ten cents coin for booklet "Preparing for Maternity." Inclose ten cents additional if you want also the "Brady Baby Book."

Salt in Hot Weather
You said salt should be taken more freely in hot weather. How about eating highly salted things such as pretzels, salted peanuts, saltine crackers, etc. (W. J.)

Answer—All right, if you can handle the extra food. Simplest practice is to take a five-grain tablet of salt, or about five grains (a good pinch) of salt with every glass of water. This helps to prevent heat stroke and heat exhaustion. It is more refreshing than water alone, when you are sweating freely.

Vitamin B in Diabetes
Please explain the value of vitamin B-complex in diabetes and its relation to the dosage of insulin. (L. J.)

Answer—One function of vitamin B is to promote the metabolism or utilization of carbohydrate. The diabetes patient supplementing the restricted diet with vitamin B complex may find it necessary after several weeks to reduce the daily dose of insulin. Send ten cents and stamped envelope bearing your address, for booklet "Training for Diabetes." (Copyright 1945 by John F. Dille Co.)

THE BATTERY OF THE ELM STREET TIGERS

has been highly effective so far this season owing to their having worked out a system of signals so elaborate that the batter, thinking something fancy must be coming, swings wildly at the next pitch, which is the only one the pitcher knows—a slow, straight ball usually wide of the plate.
