NEGLECTED TEETH AND INFANTILE PARALYSIS

In a survey of 103 young patients with infantile paralysis in Baltimore during an epidemic last year it was found that no less than 67 of the stricken children had teeth so badly decayed that the pulps were exposed. For comparison, 108 other children who did not have infantile paralysis were examined, and 26 of them had teeth so badly decayed that the pulps were exposed.

Dr. Brady

Whether this difference has any significance concerning the susceptibility of children to infantile paralysis (poliomyelitis) the Baltimore investigators did not say. They simply published their observations in the May 1, '45 issue of The Journal of the American Dental Association, and recommended "that a field study be conducted in which all the exposed pulps of one group be eliminated several months before the seasonal onset of the disease (infantile paralysis), while in a similar control group, the incidence of pulpal exposures should be recorded, but no dental treatment administered." Such a study, the investigators suggested, would indicate the importance of pulpal exposure as a portal of entry for the polio-myelitis virus.

It has been generally recognized by the medical profession that a common portal of entry if not the portal of entry of the polio virus is the lining of the upper respiratory tract, by way of the nerves of smell. Some investigators believe that in some cases the polio virus enters by way of the gastro-intestinal tract, being ingested in polluted water or milk or other food.

In another talk we'll deal more in detail with the ways the disease enters the system. Here the question that should interest every parent or guardian of a child is whether neglected teeth, neglected baby teeth, that is to say, make the child more likely to catch infantile paralysis.

Well, you know my belief, practice and teaching. No? Well, brushing one's teeth does no particular harm, but the way to care for your teeth is (1) by knowing what constitutes good nutrition and maintaining it, and (2) by having one's teeth regularly inspected and if necessary treated by the dentist. That's all there is to it, I believe.

To allow a child to have one or several cavities for months or years, without proper dental treatment on the plea that it is not worth while to have cavities in the temporary teeth filled, since the child will lose them soon anyway, it is a downright mean trick to play on the child.

If there is any foundation for the focal infection principle in the practice of medicine — and nobody doubts the soundness of the principle — then this suggestion of Drs. Aisenberg and Grubb that neglected decay of the teeth in children may make them more likely to get infantile paralysis demands serious consideration not only of parents and guardians, but of physicians and dentists everywhere.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Headache

Send to address below copies of whatever pamphlets you have on shaking palsy and headache. (A.H.W.)

Answer—Please read the instructions to correspondents. For one pamphlet inclose stamped self addressed envelope. If you ask for more than one, inclose ten cents for each additional pamphlet.

High Power Sour Milk

So-called yogurts or yoghourt or yohourt as made in this country by adding Bulgarian bacillus cultures and other cultures to boiled whole or skimmed milk—to hasten souring—are commonly believed to have superior food or health value to ordinary buttermilk or other milk beverages. Please give your opinion. (F. A. C.)

Answer— In my opinion ordinary naturally soured milk or natural buttermilk supplies all the food value and all the health value one can get from any modified milk.

Whiskey and Beer

My son and others found the exact alcoholic equivalent of 4 glasses of whiskey in one quart of beer. In other words a "shot" of whiskey contains the same amount of alcohol as a glass of beer. Miners where I lived rarely drank whiskey—too dear—but they got just as drunk on beer. (M. A. W.)

Answer—Nearly one-half (40 to 50% of whiskey is alcohol. Less than one-twentieth of beer is alcohol, (4 to 4½%). So in order to get as much alcohol as a glass of whiskey contains it would be necessary to take ten glasses (same glasses) of beer.

Prospect

Prospect, June 4.—The 20-30 club gave a farewell party, honoring Mr. and Mrs. Paul Snook and children, Stanley, Gene, Esther, and Patricia, at the Townsend hall, May 24. A 7:30 potluck supper was followed by pinochle. Sixty guests enjoyed the affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hollenbeak gave a bridge party at their home in the Red Blanket district, May 25. Refreshments were served after the playing to Mr. and Mrs. Archie McKillop, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goode, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Kelley, and Mr. and Mrs. Hollenbeak.

Mrs. Frank Salter, Mrs. Halvar Haukli, and Mrs. Louis South, who were the Prospect school lunch room staff during the past seven months, gave a noon luncheon, May 22, honoring Maurice E. Scheel, Miss Calleen Moore, Mrs. Elizabeth Flannery, Clarence Coon, Wallace Dinkens, and the members of the home economics class.

William Bond, who has been foreman of Tucker's Flounce Rock ranches for the past two years, and Mrs. Bond, had open house, May 27, and around 200 people called. Mr. and Mrs. Bond are leaving this week end for Madras, Oregon, where Mr. Bond has accepted the foreman job on the large Hay Creek ranch.

Friends of Mrs. George Jeros met at the home of Mrs. Halvar Haukli, May 25, to bid her farewell. Cake and coffee was served at close of the afternoon to the guest of honor, Mrs. Jaros, and Mrs. John Hakkerup, Mrs. Raymond Artmire, Mrs. Jack Edler, Mrs. Fred Middlebusher, Mrs. Louis South, Mrs. Heine Hertager, Mrs. Mike Vognild, Mrs. Frank Salter, Mrs. Ernest Sink, and Mrs. Haukli. Mr. Jaros, grade school principal here for the past year, has accepted a similar position at Walla Walla, and together with Mrs. Jaros and three children, moved there the first of this week.

Mrs. Clara Uhly returned from Helena, Mont., May 26, accompanied by Robert, Franklin, Andrew, and Alberta Bahr, who will make their home here with their father, Otto Bahr. The Bahr children have been staying at a boarding school at Helena since the death of their mother, several years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Merlyn Hornbuckle motored to Grants Pass, May 26, and spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Dale Griffen and children. Mr. Hornbuckle returned here Sunday, while Mrs. Hornbuckle and daughters went on to Roseburg, to visit a day, before going to Portland and Camas, Wash., They were accompanied north by Mrs. Hornbuckle's mother, Mrs. John Herman of Roseburg.

Mrs. Albert Clayton left last week for Camp Lee, Va., to spend a few weeks with her husband, Pvt. Albert Clayton. The Claytons' little son and daughter are staying with Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Hughes at Jacksonville.

Miss Carol and Miss Shirley Christean, students of Mt. Angel Academy near Salem, arrived here May 25, and will spend their vacation with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe B. Bobbyn.

Mrs. Halvor Haukli left June 1, for Johnsondale, Calif., to visit her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Petersen. Mrs. Haukli will visit in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Sacramento, and Redding before returning here. The Petersens were former residents of Prospect, moving to Johnsondale last October, where Mr. Petersen is employed at the Mt. Whitney Lbr. Co.

Maurice E. Scheel, superintendent of Prospect schools for the past two years, tendered his resignation to the school board this week. He plans to attend Oregon State college this summer, and enroll in another college in the fall.

Tracey Boothby, L. A. Ditsworth, and David Neville were chosen for the school budget committee, this year, and met with the school board, May 29, to outline the budget.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Haynes were the former's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William Dickson of Medford, and also Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hike of San Francisco.

Rose J. Kelley, clerk of Prospect school district No. 59, for the past nine years, has resigned.
