Your Health and It's Care

WHAT DOCTOR MEANS

How should the holder of a Ph.D. degree be addressed outside of his professional environment? I worked many years for the degree, simply because I wanted to make myself a better teacher. But I have not insisted on the title, and for that reason I missed getting a most lucrative position because the man in charge was unaware that I had the degree required. Perhaps it would be confusing if we teachers were addressed inpublic as "Doctor"—so many people assume that means physician. . . . (Dorothy Gray, Ph.D.—let us call her).

Dr. Brady

One of my playmates with the Doctor Philosophy degree is a teacher. Another is a chemist. I never address either by any other title than Doctor—or maybe robber, hound or pest if he manages to insinuate his bowl between mine and the jack.

If I were a teacher and had the degree Ph.D. everybody would address me as Doctor or else.

It may seem astonishing how many people in Yankeeland are ignorant of the meaning of such abbreviations as Ph.D., LL.D., D.D., SsD., D.M.D., D.D.S., M.D., D.V.M., signify or even what any one of them means. But we must remember there are millions in America. Who can just grasp the idea that a Doctor takes care of sick people, does operations and ushers you into this world and eventually perhaps rushes you out And that is perhaps less unfortunate for the public welfare than the credulity of the moron population in respect to the title "Doctor." They generally assume that any one who calls himself "Doctor" or whose accompilces in business, civil! church and social life call "Doctor" must be one—and that makes it pretty soft for thousands of humbugs, quacks and crooks to exploit these childminded people.

I am afraid you have been too modest. Doctor You should have insisted on your proper title in all formal or official circumstances. Answering your telephone you should always say "This is Doctor Dorothy Gray." Answering your doorbell you should say in reply to an inquiry whether Miss or Mrrs. Gray lives here "This is the residence of Doctor Gray." If your local newspaper mentions your name it should be as Doctor Dorothy Gray, not Miss or Mrs. Gray. If you serve on any committee or in any public or semi-public capacity do not hesitate to correct the dumb clucks who would Gray. You can and should be Gray. You can an dshould be known to everybody as Doctor Dorothy Gray and without being in the least uppity or unreasonable about it.

You see, Doctor Gray, I am well educated — ever since I tried to put over that (now withdrawn) identifying title for dentists they have been telling me that the original meaning of doctor was teacher, and hence the medical profession has no claim on it as a trade mark.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

The Poor Kid

She is now two years old. I can sponge bathe her, but whenever I try to sit her in the tub, no go. She screams and carries on . . . how can I overcome this? (Mrs. H. M.)

Answer—Don't try to. Why be so unreasonable and obstinate about it? If the poor kid prefers a sponge bath to a plunge let her have it. I'd scream and carry on some,too, I can tell you, if anybody attempted to make me get into a bathtub. There are three or four of the damned things around here, but so far as I know they are of no use to anybody. Leave it to her brothers, sisters and playmates to teach her in due course that the water is fun.

Soft and Hard Cheese

What difference is there in food values, protein, minerals, fats, vitamins etc., between soft cheeses such as pot, cottage farmer, cream, Neufchatel and hard cheeses such as American, Cheddar, Swiss, etc. (H. S. W.)

Answer—So-called pot, cottage and farmer's cheese is the same thing, made from skim milk, containing 20% of protein and only a negligible amount (1% or less) of fat. Dutch cheese, so-called, may be made of skim milk or of whole milk and if of whole milk it contains 18% protein and 10% fat. Swiss cheese more than 25% protein and 30% fat. Neufchatel 18% protein, 27% fat. American Cheddar 27% protein and 35% fat. All kinds are among the richest food sources of calcium and phosphorus, supply biologically complete protein (all essential amino-acids) and good amounts of vitamins.

RED POINT SALE CHARGED TO RING

Los Angeles June 13—(U.P.)—A giant black market counterfeiting ring, which allegedly swamped this area with 20,000,000 red points and one of the causes for the current meat shortage in southern California, was disclosed today by U. S. Dist. Atty. William Ritzi.

George De Normand, 41, operator of Enterprizes Limited, has been charged with possessing and selling counterfeit red meat points, and was released on $5,000 bond. De Normand, who describes himself as a Hollywood actor and writer, was caught while selling 100,000 red points to the operator of a large Hollywood meat market, Ritzi said.

OPA investigators and secret service operators are searching various midwest points for five counterfeiting plants where the contraband stamps are made, Ritzi declared.
